One of Best Fall Business Seasons Is Indicated

N. Y. Market Sees Greatest Buyer Influx

Show Buildings Are Taxed To Provide Space for Salesmen.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
NEW YORK, July 11.—Indicating one of the nation's best fall business seasons, the greatest influx of merchandise buyers in history have arrived in New York to lay in stocks for the anticipated fall trade throughout the country.

More buyers will arrive next week to augment the record-breaking groups which greeted the opening of the fall buying season.

Rushing Business.

Resident buyers are doing rushing business and show buildings have been taxed to accommodate the incoming buyers and the literally swarms of salesmen seeking space in which to show their wares.

A spirit of optimism prevails. From all sections of the nation they come, each with a note of cheerfulness and anticipated good business.

Even the early orders have exceeded those of the similar period in years past. Usually the buyers devote the first week only to viewing the samples and taking numbers of designs wanted. This year they have been faster about placing initial orders.

Early Orders.

The Women's Wear Daily reports:

"The official opening of the season was very encouraging from the viewpoint of the large contingent of buyers, and the early placing of orders in the manufacturers' showrooms. In addition to the opening lines in apparel houses, the opening of corset lines, the curtain and drapery show at the Hotel New Yorker and many scheduled meetings in the various buying organizations were the attractions."

Some buyers were frank to express views that President Roosevelt's declaration against a foreign war had already added confidence in business.

The war is being forgotten as the optimistic view is taken and stocks are laid in for the fall trade, much bigger stocks than were ordered for last fall's trade.

Buyers for the popular priced and cheaper merchandise will begin arriving next week as will those seeking the highest grade fashions, the Daily reports.

Army Aviator Is Killed When Parachute Fails

SOMERSET, Pa., July 11.—(UP)—Lieutenant Newton R. Dick, 26, army air corps pilot, was killed today when his parachute failed to open after he bailed out of a twin-engined army bomber whose motors had cut out.

Dick, stationed at Wright Field, Dayton, Ohio, was ferrying the Martin B-10 medium bomber from Mitchell Field, Long Island, to Wright Field. The bomber crashed and burned.

Rain Damages $100,000,000 To Atlanta Will In Contracts Let Top $75,000 For Warplanes

Rainfall 4 Times Normal for Entire Month; More Is Expected Today.

Rain, which has fallen daily on Atlanta since July 2 in a quantity four times normal for the entire month, has caused damage of between $75,000 and $100,000 to the city's streets and sewers, Clarke Donaldson, chief of construction, reported yesterday.

The damage to the streets, sidewalks and sewers caused by the rain is in excess to the damage caused in February by the ice and snowstorm and is the worst in the past 20 years," Donaldson said.

Officials said the fact that competitive bidding was not required had assisted them in launching the program swiftly. The army and the navy merely drew up specifications, found manufacturers capable of handling their orders and then let the contracts.

First plane deliveries are expected by early fall.

Defense Parley. Dr. George J. Mead, aeronautical adviser to the committee, declared at a press conference today that representatives of the army and navy, aircraft manufacturing companies, the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation had met Tuesday and had agreed on a program of air defense co-operation.

The following steps were taken: 1. Army and navy representatives agreed to standardize their specifications and inspection work, hitherto carried on independently.

2. Representatives of the industry agreed to undertake quick expansion of their plants, to place immediate orders for necessary tools and materials and to begin enlisting additional trained workers.

3. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation agreed to make loans immediately available for this expansion.

4. The national advisory committee for aeronautics announced that it had begun work on new research facilities at Langley Field, Va., and Sunnydale, Cal., to improve further the airplanes it already has created. This committee is the government's principal organization for research and design of airplanes.

The sun fought a stiff battle with the clouds yesterday, the weatherman said, forcing his way through breaks in the clouds on numerous occasions, but was unable to hold the advances. The battle was not successful enough to prevent rain today. Showers are predicted with a high of 88 degrees. Extremes yesterday were 66 and 31 degrees.

Congress, meanwhile, completed work on the $4,000,000 naval expansion bill and sent it to the White House. This measure, authorizing a 70 per cent increase in the fleet, was passed by the senate yesterday after an hour's debate and today the house hastened to approve minor senate changes.

Charges Berlin Tries To Scare Latin America

Conference Is for Americas Only, Secretary Says in Hands-Off Demand.

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Secretary of State Hull, accusing Germany of an apparent attempt to intimidate Latin American countries, indicated plainly today that non-American powers should keep hands off the forthcoming Pan-American conference at Havana.

The conference was called with the view of solidifying a united front of the 21 American republics for defense and economic co-operation in view of developments in Europe.

Asked About Warning.

At a press conference, a reporter asked Hull about dispatches reporting that German diplomats had "warned" some of the southern republics against taking any action at Havana aimed directly or indirectly against Germany.

Hull said he had heard something of this nature. This, he asserted with emphasis, apparently was a species of intimidation of nations whose sovereignty and freedom of action and integrity were entitled to the fullest respect by every other country. There was no theory, he added, upon which any country should attack this sovereignty and freedom of action.

The Havana conference, he asserted, was to be an inter-American affair held by agreement of the American nations to consider matters relating solely to these 21 republics.

In other quarters, it was learned that the United States was refusing to take any non-American countries, including Great Britain, into its confidence on matters to come before the Havana conference which opens on July 20.

Mandates Considered.

Secretary Hull himself plans to head the United States delegation which will leave Washington next Thursday.

Indication that consideration was being given here to some form of mandate or protectorate over certain European possessions in this hemisphere came from Hull when his attention was called to a statement yesterday by Foreign Minister Aranha of Brazil.

Hull said he always had respect for the views of Aranha, who formerly was Brazilian ambassador to the United States.

Aranha said Brazil would favor a proposal at Havana for some form of mandate or protectorate which would prevent these possessions from falling into German or Italian hands.

CENTRAL AMERICA SCORNS NAZI OBSERVATIONS

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras,

July 11.—(AP)—A German note of "observation" has not changed the attitude of the five Central American republics in their policy to act as a unit in support of the United States program at the Havana conference of American foreign ministers July 20, the Honduran foreign ministry indicated today.

The ministry said the German note, received yesterday by the trade paper, "was the jump in operations at several plants still turning out 1940 models, as a result of the sharp upswing in retail sales in June. Field stocks are fairly low, as regards several companies, which are now endeavoring to build up sufficient inventories before shutting down for new model changeovers."

Brisk Upturn Seen In Motor Output

DETROIT, July 11.—(AP)—Automobile News in its weekly survey of automobile plant activity today estimated output this week at 71,634 cars and trucks, compared with 53,783 in the preceding half-year—shortened week and 65,111 this week a year ago.

"A feature of the week," said the trade paper, "was the jump in operations at several plants still turning out 1940 models, as a result of the sharp upswing in retail sales in June. Field stocks are fairly low, as regards several companies, which are now endeavoring to build up sufficient inventories before shutting down for new model changeovers."

BEAUTY UNSHATTERED—One of the countless drawbacks about fighting a war is that so much of irreplaceable beauty is destroyed in the process. Not always, however. Some of it escapes. For instance, Movie Beauty Madeleine Carroll (right) arrived in New York yesterday, having fled the ravages of Europe's war. Also on the Atlantic Clipper which brought Miss Carroll were lovely Lorraine de Braux and her handsome one-year-old son Peter (left). Mrs. de Braux is the wife of a French officer.

Camp's Faction Knocks at Door Of Talmadge

Passes Resolution Denouncing Nix as Enemy of Roosevelt.

By LUKE GREENE.

Lawrence Camp's brand of New Dealers began knocking at the door of red-gallused Eugene Talmadge yesterday, beckoning him into their company, with a tempting resolution denouncing Candidate Abit Nix as an enemy of the Roosevelt philosophy and labeling him as an ideal running mate for Wendell Willkie.

In other quarters, it was learned that the United States was refusing to take any non-American countries, including Great Britain, into its confidence on matters to come before the Havana conference which opens on July 20.

Bomb Planting Near G. O. P.'s Hall Is Denied

Explosive 'Intended for Pennsylvania Governor' Declared Found.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11.—(AP) Philadelphia officials contradicted today New York police assertions that bombs were found near the Republican national convention hall here, while an aide of Governor Arthur H. James, of Philadelphia, said one bomb discovered here was intended for the Governor.

Police acknowledged that a crude time bomb was seized in the washroom of a central city building on the convention's opening day, June 24, but took issue with a statement by a high police source in New York that bombs had been planted near the $50,000 auditorium, where the Republicans met.

In Harrisburg, Pennsylvania's capital, a source close to Governor James said he had been informed that one man arrested after the bomb discovery in Philadelphia told police, "That one was addressed to the Governor." James was a candidate for the presidential nomination.

Lieutenant Albert A. Granitz said the washroom where he found one bomb, presumably that intended for the Governor, was in a building used by Communists.

Citizens Voice Sentiments on Water System

Opinion in Suburban Areas Greatly Divided on Proposal.

Prominent businessmen of the suburban area which will be affected by the proposed water and sewer system yesterday issued statements about the proposal which they said expressed also the sentiments of their communities.

Homer F. George, vice chairman of the Decatur board of commissioners, said "I have read the plan of Zode Smith and E. L. Almand for a metropolitan water system. It seems Atlanta has found out that East Point has some money on hand, and as usual, Atlanta wants to be the trustee of the fund."

In East Point itself some of the comments were:

G. E. Harris, grocer, "I favor East Point's water system. I don't want the city of Atlanta to have anything to do with it. The county might be able to help, but I don't know about that."

M. O. Hemperley, merchant,

"Since we have gone as far as we have with our waterworks bond issue, I think East Point should continue unperturbed with this project."

H. B. Beadle, warehouse operator,

"The proposal depends on how the city would charge for its water. In East Point we have good service now and I wouldn't want to change unless Atlanta cuts the county rate to a reasonable figure."

F. K. McElroy, druggist, "I favor the metropolitan system. The rate may be a little higher but we can be assured an even pressure all the time."

J. D. McLucas, filling station operator, "We've got too much invested in our wells to change. Besides, we're in good shape now so that our supply is supplemented by Atlanta, if and when the wells slack up."

L. T. Harsand, grocer, "I favor the metropolitan water system because it should provide cheaper rates. Digging wells is an expensive way of getting water."

D. H. Vaughn, lumberman, "I'm not well acquainted with the proposal, but off hand it might be better for us. However, I haven't had any trouble with East Point water."

R. R. Chapman, druggist, "I'm afraid a monopoly price for water might go too high if the supply was placed in one hand. Our Atlanta hook-up is working all right as it is."

M. H. Patton, druggist, "I'm satisfied with the present set-up. The pressure is sometimes low, but that's all the trouble that needs any improvement."

College Park citizens said this about the proposal:

D. M. Cook, grocer, "Our system seems to be o. k. I don't know about future years; a metropolitan system might be of help there."

R. L. Brand, grocer, "We're doing all right. The service we get is good and the cost is reasonable."

J. H. Croley, merchant, "I haven't been keeping up with the discussion so I don't know much about it. A metropolitan system might work out for the best in the long run, though."

R. L. Carr, merchant, "Frankly, it would make no difference to me if the water is supplied by College Park or by a metropolitan system."

W. D. Browning, grocer, "I'm satisfied the way it is. If a metropolitan system can be of any improvement, however, I'm for it."

William J. Lloyd, merchant, "I don't see where a metropolitan system will help us. We tried to get some help from the county about 10 years ago and couldn't, so I'm not interested now. Our system is good and all the wells are paid for."

prove of the metropolitan system because we in East Point are proud of our independence and our efficient water and light departments with their cheaper rates."

H. F. Nix, furniture dealer, "The metropolitan proposal is a good thing. It will prove more economical, will give better water and we need it for our growth."

H. B. Beadle, warehouse operator, "The proposal depends on how the city would charge for its water. In East Point we have good service now and I wouldn't want to change unless Atlanta cuts the county rate to a reasonable figure."

F. K. McElroy, druggist, "I favor the metropolitan system. The rate may be a little higher but we can be assured an even pressure all the time."

Water, Sewer District To Be Proposed Soon

City Officials Will Study Plan for Metropolitan System.

Establishment of a metropolitan water and sewer district will be proposed to the city planning commission and the sewer committee of city council within the next week, Walter S. McNeal Jr., an official of both the city and county planning commissions, announced yesterday.

McNeal said since all the sewer systems around the city "have the same outlet" he believed it would be best for them to be combined into a central system.

Legislation Required.

Ed Almand, chairman of the county commission, Wednesday recommended that Atlanta, Fulton and DeKalb counties get together for the creation of a metropolitan water and sewer district through enabling legislation by the general assembly at its meeting in 1941. His proposal has received wide approval from many civic leaders of the county and city.

McNeal said he would propose to the city planning commission within the next few days that it take up a study of the proposal at once. He also will place the matter before the sewer committee of council to determine how its members feel about such a combination of all water and sewer systems under one representative control, he said.

To Discuss Plan.

The county planning commission is to discuss the proposal at an early date but did not take up the matter at any length at its meeting yesterday.

Three DeKalb county officials left yesterday afternoon for Washington where they will push federal approval for a $700,000 WPA project to construct a DeKalb waterworks system serving the county from Chamblee to Panthersville, and including the Emory and Druid Hills sections.

Seek WPA Aid.

They were Commissioner Scott Candler, Julius McCurdy, Decatur attorney, and A. F. Newman, DeKalb city manager.

It was understood they would confer with WPA officials today in an effort to get speedy approval of the project which will be matched with $800,000 contributed by the county and Decatur.

C.M.T.C. Turns Him Down, He Drills at Home

14 Years Past Deadline, Louisianian Shows His Determination.

This is a story of a patriot. N. Watts Maddux, St. Bernard (La.) accountant, wanted to take the business and professional men's C. M. T. C. course at Fort McPherson.

The army said "No." Mr. Maddux is 64, just 14 years over the age limit for the trainees.

Still Mr. Maddux persisted. He'd train himself.

"In stress times like these I want to help, and am reviewing army drill regulations, Plattsburg manual and similar works," he wrote Fourth Corps Area headquarters. "If you can have sent to me any booklets that are being followed by the C. M. T. C. these will be most serviceable to me and in some measure ease off my disappointment in not getting into the course."

Tired South Georgia Cow Sits On Bumper of Atlantan's Auto

A tired cow yesterday was receiving the doubtful credit for wrecking an automobile.

George Loehr, operator of one of the elevators at the city hall, limped back into Atlanta after a vacation trip to South Georgia, with a wheezing car caused by a badly damaged radiator and front.

He explained that he was driving along the highway at a "reasonable pace" when a cow loomed suddenly in front of his machine. He says he applied the brakes, but the cow continued to run along the road in front of his car and he could not swerve into left-hand lanes because of on-coming traffic.

Finally, as he eased closer to the cow, the machine came to stop and struck her hind legs.

"She was so tired from her exertions, she just sat down on the bumper and leaned back against my radiator," he said. "That accounts for the damage."

Britain Considers Using Steel Armor on Troops

LONDON, July 11.—(P)—Steel-cased shock troops like knights of the middle ages may fight the Battle of Britain in armor capable of stopping rifle and machinegun bullets.

Walter Distillator, representing the United States Armor Corporation of New York said today the war office is considering his armor proposal.

Giant Liner 'America' Given West Indies Route

NEW YORK, July 11.—(P)—The new $17,000,000 liner America, largest merchant ship built in the United States, will be placed in the West Indies cruise service.

The United States lines said to-night.

The 27,000-ton vessel will make maiden voyage from New York August 10. The ship is at Norfolk, being fitted out.

Citizen Rookies Study Modern Garand Rifles

Also Will Strip, Assemble Machine Guns and Pistols.

The southeast's citizen soldiers got their first gander yesterday at the army's most modern weapons, which will be called upon to defend this country's shores in case of invasion.

Featuring the new Garand rifles, the weapons will be used for stripping and assembling, demonstration and actual firing by the trainees at later times during the 30-day training period at Fort McPherson.

Each trainee already has been issued Springfield rifles to carry in drills, and for use in ordinary rifle marksmanship. These are a 1903 model.

Twenty Garand rifles were to be used by the trainees, plus 20 automatic pistols, 1911 model; eight machine guns; 10 automatic rifles, 1918 model; one 37-millimeter gun, antitank, and one .50-caliber machinegun.

These citizens, most of whom never had any military training before, were picking up the duties of soldiers. Here were men used to speaking coy words to pretty waitresses and ordering them about. Now they were waiting tables themselves, serving up the dishes for fellow soldiers who were "eating like rookies." Mess Sergeant Tom Muirhead said. "After about three weeks they will ease off, and waists will begin reducing," he added.

Registration for the training was to close last night, with several late arrivals expected. A complete list of trainees through early last night follows:

ATLANTA—B. S. Avery, fire protection engineer; J. G. Alexander, oil distributor; George B. Brinkley, printing plant superintendent; Jeremiah Coleman Clark, insurance adjuster; Horace Alan Dale, chemist; John D. Dickey, C. W. Davis, R. Haas Jr., real estate firm; William A. Final Plans Set For Convention By Georgians Delegates to Democratic Convention Leave Here Tomorrow.

Members of the Georgia party to the Democratic national convention in Chicago next week were making last-minute plans yesterday, in preparation for leaving Atlanta aboard a special train at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

While committee meetings and other pre-convention meetings in Chicago were setting the stage for the big event, Georgia's delegates remained to President Roosevelt as their nominee or, apparently, whomsoever he should select in the event he should not run.

W. V. Crowley, treasurer of the Georgia delegation and chairman of arrangements, said plans for the trip were virtually complete.

Major Clark Howell, chairman of the delegation, urged those who are going on the special train to be at the Union station by 3:30 o'clock (Atlanta time) tomorrow afternoon.

The train will arrive in Chicago at 9 o'clock Sunday morning. Headquarters for the Georgia delegation will be at the Palmer House and the Stevens hotel. Governor Rivers and Mrs. Virginia Polhill Price, Georgia's national committeewoman and committeewoman, left for Chicago in advance of the rest of the party to attend the pre-convention meetings.

Joining the Atlanta and Georgia party will be Macon's political prodigy, Billy Dixon, 17, who will attend the convention as the guest of the Governor.

Billy, a lieutenant on the Governor's staff, will be a member of the secretarial corps at the convention. He is a graduate of Lanier High school, and will study law and journalism at the University of Georgia.

Besides the delegates, the Georgia party also will include the following:

Mrs. E. D. Rivers, D. B. Blalock Sr., Atlanta; Ceci Cannon, Atlanta; W. W. Flanders Jr., Swainsboro; W. E. Jr., Don, Phillips, Atlanta; Philip, Harlem; J. G. Glover, Atlanta; Dr. S. G. Jones; J. W. Woodruff Sr., Columbus; Frank A. Daniels, Eatonton; Ivan Allen, Atlanta; Mrs. S. T. Thompson, Marietta; L. L. Patterson, Lakeland; C. E. Gregory Sr., Atlanta.

Others: Mrs. W. T. Dean, Conyers; Mrs. T. T. Benton, Jefferson; Mrs. Alice Davidson, Irwin; Mrs. Cornell Carpenter, Bremen; Mrs. B. W. Swainsboro; Mr. and Mrs. Speed Mabrey, Swainsboro; Mr. and Mrs. Miller Thomas; Mrs. A. H. Newell, Newellton; Mrs. W. W. Martin, L. M. Mavity, Roswell; Dr. S. W. Martin; Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Camp's Faction Knocks at Door Of Talmadge on the back, fondling his red suspenders and telling them they were ready to join up with him—provided, of course, that he could offer them the right proposition.

"Gene" wasn't at home to the Camp Democrats yesterday. He was at Danville making a political speech. His son, Herman Talmadge, evidenced surprise that there should be such a turn in political events and said, "Papa naturally expected some of the New Dealers to vote for him," but added he knew of no mass alliance with the Camp "followers."

Although the Democratic council was launched on the political scene with a gala christening and a gala naming of Camp at its helm more recently it has struck rough weather and the going has been rather bumpy. Its popularity has declined rapidly, and its weekly newspaper, the Georgia Homestead, is said to be having financial difficulties.

Nix's headquarters had no comment yesterday on the resolution read by the council stamping the Athens attorney as being out of sympathy with the Roosevelt program of government.

"We are profoundly convinced that the next Governor of Georgia should be a man whose complete, whole-hearted and unreserved loyalty should go to President Roosevelt," the group said in their resolution. They added, however, that "Honorable Hosea Abit Nix is not such a man."

The Camp "followers" explained they were not questioning Nix's ability or his personal or professional integrity, but said they did not believe he was a real friend and supporter of the Roosevelt philosophy.

"Mr. Nix, of course, would answer his country's call to arms in event of war, but he would not answer his country's call to liberalism in event of domestic and internal crisis," the resolution read.

The resolution said that "Mr. Nix would make an ideal candidate for Mr. Willkie, with Mr. Willkie running for president and Mr. Nix for governor, but from a loyal Democratic standpoint, Mr. Nix is undesirable, unacceptable and unfit."

After the meeting, some of the small-town politicians around the hotel were asking what the Democratic Council was. They had never heard of it.

The Camp Democrats adopted their resolution during a luncheon meeting. The only other action they took, they said, was to endorse Hamilton Ralls for commissioner of agriculture and agree to meet back in Atlanta after entries close July 25, to select their candidate for governor.

Among those present at the meeting were Harvey Kennedy, Arnold Ansley, O. P. Johnston, Mr. Harvey Kennedy, Charles Parker, Kenneth Campbell, Mrs. W. R. Simpson, secretary of the council; Joe A. King, Mrs. George H. Keeler and O. M. Pollock.

McNary Is Seen As Big Factor In G.O.P. Drive

No Background Role for Oregonian, Capitol Believes.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS, Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—Belief that Republican Vice Presidential Nominee Charles McNary, Oregon's liberal senator, may play a part in the oncoming presidential campaign much more important than that of the usual running-mate role is daily becoming more apparent to Washington observers of things political.

They base their conclusions on the fact that Wendell Willkie is receiving tremendous publicity, even for a Republican nominee with the usual advantage of a favorable press. While favorable publicity never hurt any candidate, observers admit, there is the constant fear of a let-down. And, at the rate of the "build-up" given Willkie, the let-down is quite possible to occur long before the November balloting.

The impression is that Republican campaign chiefs may endeavor to forestall such a catastrophe by giving Senator McNary a part in the campaign much larger than usually is afforded to vice presidential candidates. That McNary can well be employed in this capacity is quite generally conceded, since his congressional record is such that it can readily be made attractive to the liberal voters of the nation to which the Republican party is making an appeal.

'Reform' Legislature Ends Louisiana Session

BATON ROUGE, La., July 11.—(AP)—Louisiana's "reform" legislature ended its regular 60-day session today with opinion differing on its accomplishments and some of the Huey P. Long "dictator" statutes still on the books.

In the main, however, Governor Sam Jones pushed to enactment most of the platform he used in his campaign, which toppled the 12-year-old Long regime from power.

64 Legislators Urge Roosevelt To Run Again

Ickes Expresses Belief That F. D. R. Will Accept Renomination.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(AP)—A declaration that President Roosevelt "should accept renomination and continue his aggressive leadership," was issued today by 64 Democratic members of the house, while the chief executive continued his studied silence.

Third term talk also came from other quarters. Secretary Ickes expressed to reporters his belief that Mr. Roosevelt would accept renomination—but explained that it was only his own opinion and that it was based on no word from the President.

Meanwhile, Democrats began an exodus toward Chicago. Congress recessed late today until July 20 to give its majority members a chance to attend the convention.

Text of Resolution on Nix

Following is the resolution adopted yesterday by the executive committee of the Democratic Council of Georgia, predicting President Roosevelt's nomination at the Democratic national convention and denouncing Gubernatorial Candidate Abit Nix as being out of sympathy with the Roosevelt philosophy.

The Democratic Council of Georgia, consolidated, unterstützte supporters of Franklin D. Roosevelt, in special meeting in Atlanta, July 11, 1941, heard and adopted the following resolution of principles:

1. Our country, although not at war, is menaced by events in Europe and the far east with the gravest peril in the history of the world.

2. To meet this peril, our President has recommended, and we are in full agreement with him, that we both able and willing to do certain things: First, to prepare for national defense on an unprecedented scale; second, to maintain co-operation, in every thinking citizen; second, to maintain in at least substantial measure the American standard of living.

3. In clear-sighted and courageous recognition of this peril, our Democratic national party, which convened next week in Chicago, will nominate President Roosevelt to carry again the banner of his party and his people, who trust and revere him as America's greatest leader since George Washington.

4. We are profoundly convinced that President Roosevelt, notwithstanding his weariness of body and mind, will respond to this call of his party and the nation.

5. Mr. Nix represents almost the exact antithesis of the Roosevelt philosophy. Mr. Nix represents almost the exact antithesis of the Roosevelt philosophy.

6. Mr. Nix is a very able and well-qualified man for service in the Senate, which is a subsidiary of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, in which he is a braver American patriot than any man in the Senate.

7. Mr. Nix is the able and well-qualified president of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, in which he is a braver American patriot than any man in the Senate.

8. Mr. Nix is a very able and well-qualified man for service in the Senate, which is a subsidiary of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, in which he is a braver American patriot than any man in the Senate.

9. Mr. Nix is a very able and well-qualified man for service in the Senate, which is a subsidiary of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, in which he is a braver American patriot than any man in the Senate.

10. Mr. Nix is a very able and well-qualified man for service in the Senate, which is a subsidiary of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, in which he is a braver American patriot than any man in the Senate.

11. Mr. Nix is a very able and well-qualified man for service in the Senate, which is a subsidiary of the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation, in which he is a braver American patriot than any man in the Senate.

12. Therefore we adopt this resolution to make known to the real Roosevelt Democrats of Georgia our willingness and refusal to give our support to Mr. Nix.

Clemency Plea Made to U. S. By Annenberg

Attorney Says Imprisonment Would Endanger Publisher's Health.

CHICAGO, July 11.—(P)—M. L. Annenberg, affluent publisher who has been sentenced to three years in prison for evading $1,217,296 in income taxes, made a new plea for clemency today.

His attorney, Weymouth Kirkland, presented to Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson a memorandum and several affidavits supporting his previous petition for probation and contending that imprisonment would endanger Annenberg's health.

Three affidavits signed by Philadelphia physicians set forth that Annenberg, 63, was not well and needed immediate operations, and that imprisonment would endanger his health.

The defense contended that modification of the sentence would not be inconsistent with punishment in similar cases. It stated that only six of 33 defendants in other income cases had received sentences of more than two years, and Tom Pendergast, Kansas City political boss, had received a 15-month term.

Annenberg's sentence, imposed July 1, was termed "unduly harsh" in comparison to the others mentioned.

Kirkland suggested that Judge Wilkerson appoint a physician to examine Annenberg and confer with the medics who signed the affidavits.

A hearing on the petition for probation was set for next Monday.

Bill by Whelchel Would Draft Cash

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(P)—A bill giving the President power to conscript private money in times of war or national emergency was introduced today by Representative Whelchel, Democrat, Georgia.

A similar bill was introduced in February, 1939, by Senator Lee, Democrat, Oklahoma.

The bill would authorize the President to require citizens and alien residents to subscribe to government bonds in an amount to be determined by the individual's net wealth. The amounts subject to loan by the government would range from five per cent of net wealth in excess of $1,000 and not over $10,000 to 75 per cent of wealth in excess of $100,000,000. The loans would be for maximum periods of 50 years and would bear one per cent interest annually.

Training Game Pits Southwest Against South

All Georgia Regulars and Militia Going to Louisiana Maneuvers.

CAMP BEAUREGARD, La., July 11.—(P)—The south will fight it out with the southwest in the August army maneuvers here when 70,000 regular army and national guard troops will clash in simulated warfare.

Lieutenant General S. D. Emick, commanding the third army, will direct the maneuvers which bring together concentrations from the eighth and fourth corps army areas.

Regular army troops fighting with the blue or east forces will come from Forts Benning, Ga., Bragg, N. C., McPherson, Ga., and Oglethorpe, Ga., and from South Carolina, while virtually the entire national guard strength of Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee will participate.

Fighting with the west forces will be the second division from Fort Sam Houston, Tex., and troops from Forts Bliss, Clark, Brown, McIntosh, D. A. Russell, Crockett, all of Texas, and Fort Sill, Okla., and Brooks Field, Tex. National guard troops will come from Oklahoma, Colorado, Arizona, New Mexico and Texas.

Japanese-U. S. Incident Nears Peaceful End

Marine Officers and Nipponese Chiefs To Express 'Mutual Regrets.'

SHANGHAI (Friday), July 12. (UP)—Japanese-American tension was subsiding today following written exchanges between Colonel Dewitt Peck, commanding the United States marines, and Japanese army authorities, and both sides appeared to be taking precautions to prevent new "incidents."

Text of the letter Colonel Peck wrote the Japanese, explaining the temporary arrest of 16 Japanese gendarmes by marines on Sunday, was not released but it was understood the Japanese were inclined to accept it despite the fact it was "not entirely satisfactory."

Marine corps and Japanese army officers will meet at the United States marines' headquarters this morning, it was said, and will declare the incident closed after mutual expressions of regret.

Solons Urge U. S. Bases In Nova Scotia, Bermuda

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(P)—Three members of the house military committee, after surveying northeast coast defenses recommended today that the United States acquire and fortify fleet and air bases in Nova Scotia and Bermuda.

The report was made by Representatives Smith, Democrat, Connecticut; Faddis, Democrat, Pennsylvania, and Byrnes, Democrat, Tennessee, Smith saying that he favored purchase or lease of bases in the Canadian province and the British-owned island "right away."

The three agreed that the Atlantic northeast, an area "most vital to our national security" needed more defense works, "even if bases were strongly fortified and securely held in Nova Scotia and Bermuda."

Following the election, the new officers were installed by Hoyt Wimpy, state commander of the Legion.

Italy Blackouts for War, Not Necking, Chief Says

MILAN, Italy, July 11.—(UP)—The prefecture of police has ordered all provincial authorities to put an end to "irrational activities, including petting parties" which "contrast with the present international situation."

The orders referred specifically to couples who take carriage rides during blackouts.

TWIN CALVES.
LAGRANGE, Ga., July 11.—Twins, an ordinary occurrence in human birth, occurs much less frequently in the animal realm—about once every 10,000 births among cows. A cow on the farm of Charles A. Parker, on the West Point road, is one in 10,000. She gave birth this week to twin calves, apparently normal in every respect, Mr. Parker said.

U. S. Will File Action Against Pullman Units

Civil Action, in Addition, Will Name Noted Financial Leaders.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(P)—The Justice Department announced tonight that it would file in Philadelphia federal district court tomorrow a civil action against the Pullman companies and 31 individuals, including outstanding financial leaders, in an effort to divorce control of sleeping car manufacture from operation of the railroads.

Among those whom the department said would be named are J. Pierpont Morgan, Richard K. Mellon, Sewell Avery, Alfred P. Sloan Jr., Harold S. Vanderbilt, George Whitney, C. W. Seabury, H. S. Morgan, all directors of one or more of the companies.

Spurn Light Coaches.

The complaint will charge, the department said in statement, that the Pullman companies "have refused to operate modern light-weight railroad equipment purchased by the railroads from any manufacturer other than the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Company, and have threatened to withdraw the existing sleeping car service and operations if railroads should buy and operate themselves any cars made by other manufacturers."

The statement said further that the complainant would allege that the Pullman organization through its operating monopoly "charges the public artificial and unreasonably high prices for pullman accommodations, and exacts non-competitive and onerous terms from railroads for the sleeping car service which it provides."

Cars 20 Years Old.

The department said that the Pullman company owned approximately 6,000 sleeping cars, many of which are more than 20 years old, and in an endeavor to protect these obsolete cars from the competition of new types of rolling stock, forced the railroads to use existing equipment and prevented them from operating light-weight, streamlined, sleeping cars.

As a consequence, it was alleged, "the production of modern railroad equipment by independent manufacturers and its use by the railroads have been hamstrung."

Other defendants to be named were listed as the Pullman Company, which is the operating unit; Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing Company, which is the manufacturing unit; Pullman, Inc., a holding company which owns the first two, and Pullman Car & Manufacturing Corporation of Alabama.

E. W. Dahlberg Gives Speech's Exact Quotes

Refers to Regulations in County on Food Stamp Plan.

Earle W. Dahlberg, program organizer for the Surplus Marketing Administration, said yesterday he was misquoted on a speech he made Tuesday to the Atlanta Kiwanis Club. His remarks should have been quoted as:

"For the first time in the history of the United States we are suffering because we have too much of the things we need the most."

"The purpose of the food stamp plan is to increase consumption tending to equalize distribution."

"We are masters in production, but we haven't learned how to distribute such things to the underprivileged who ask only for the chance to work for them."

Mr. Dahlberg pointed out that, contrary to a Constitution news article, merchants outside the county are not invited to advertise the Food Stamp plan, because they are not permitted to participate. Neither did he state that merchants within the county would not be able to participate because of financial objections.

"Thirty years of work in a hot metal factory, aside to nine years of labor in the Health Department of the City of Atlanta, is enough to wear anyone out," says Mr. W. N. Ponder, of 1101 Capitol Ave.	"My health had gotten to the point where nothing tasted good. I couldn't get through my day's work. Then I thought of SARGON, the medicine which had done me so much good twelve years ago. I had a new bottle of SARGON and Improved SARGON, and so I began taking it. In a short time it brought back my health. I didn't feel 'worn out' again. Now I consider my health excellent, and I'm constantly pleased to be able to recommend SARGON. Airport Manager Reveals Marriage Took Place June 24.

(Picture on Page 1) Jack Gray, dapper gray-haired manager of the Municipal Airport, surprised his fellow workers with the admission yesterday that he is a bridegroom.

The new Mrs. Gray is the former Hazel Coe, daughter of Mrs. Bessie Coe, of Miami, Fla. Mr. and Mrs. Gray were married June 24 in the Church of the Open Door, with Mrs. Virginia Brandt Berg, desciple of Aimee Semple McPherson, officiating. Mr. Gray was attended by Bill Ward, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Ethel Scott, of Miami, sister of the bride, was treasurer and Mrs. Guy Hudson matron of honor.

The pretty blue-eyed blonde said that they were married very quietly and didn't announce their marriage sooner because neither of them wanted any publicity.

Mrs. Gray was graduated from the Miami Edison High school, and has lived in Atlanta for the past several years. She is "more than 20," she said. Mr. Gray refused to discuss his age.

HOUSES TO HAVE NO WOOD. Plans have been prepared in Coventry, England, for the erection of 2,000 houses without wood. They will have brick walls, iron-framed windows, as in other houses, but the roofs, staircases, floors and other parts of the building will be in concrete. The cost is to be over $1,000,000.

Hospital Asks Street Closing For Expansion

Crawford W. Long Official Appears Before Council Body.

A $562,000 extension program at the Crawford W. Long hospital hinges on the authority to close a portion of Benton street between Prescot street and Linden avenue. Dr. Luther C. Fischer, president, told city council's public works committee yesterday.

Dr. Fischer was backed by Thomas K. Glenn, chairman of the Grady hospital board of trustees, in his request that council close the street to permit the development.

Robert Lee Avary, attorney, whose home adjoins the property which will be included in the hospital development, and several other property owners opposed closing the street, contending they live there and, although the street is not the only means of ingress and egress, it serves a convenience and should remain a thoroughfare. Benton street is 20 feet wide.

Committee members deferred action on the petition, deciding to hold it until a full attendance of the committee is present to pass on the matter. As a result, no recommendation will be filed at council's meeting Monday.

Livestock Rate Hearings Open Here Monday

McDonald Says Hauling Costs From South Top All Others.

Southern arguments for equality with other sections in rates charged for hauling livestock will be marshalled Monday at a hearing here of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

"We have higher rates within and from the south to other sections than any other territory," Walter McDonald, chairman of the Georgia Public Service Commission and also of the Southern Livestock Rate-Steering Committee, declared yesterday. "We want rates no higher than the others." The hearing is expected to last for about two weeks.

Witnesses scheduled to appear include McDonald, Dr. Clarence Poe, of Raleigh, N. C., editor of the Progressive Farmer; J. L. Liles Jr., extension economist at Auburn, Ala.; L. H. Lewis, marketing specialist of the Florida state marketing bureau at Jacksonville; Ransom Aldrich, president of the Mississippi farm bureau at Jackson, Miss., and O. M. Clark, extension economist at Clemson College, Clemson, S. C.

Has Her First Permanent On 83d Birthday

Beauty Operators Amazed at Vitality of Their Customer.

It's never too late to learn as far as Mrs. M. J. Henderson, of 1569 Jonesboro road, is concerned.
That is why she had her first permanent wave on her 83rd birthday.

She sat in the chair and, like a peachtree debutante, read the latest copy of Bazaar while Miss Reuben McGee fastened the curling clips and strands of snow-white hair. Furthermore, she read without her glasses—as is her custom.

Beauty shop employees were amazed at the enthusiasm and vitality of their customer, who denies any romance and, in explaining her trip to the shop, merely winks and says, "Everyone should look as nice as they can."

Her hair—although it is fine with age—responded well to the curling irons, operators said, and Mrs. Henderson herself expressed delight with the result.

She lives with her niece, Mrs.
Gussie V. Harris, who said she was "not at all surprised" because Mrs. Henderson is "as young as she feels and she feels plenty young sometimes."

Acreage in Cotton
Increased in State

ATHENS, Ga., July 11.—(AP)—
Georgia cotton acreage in cultivation July 1 was 5,000 greater than it was at the same period last year, the Georgia Crop Reporting Service announced.

Compilations set the acreage at 1,994,000 this year, compared with 1,989,000 July 1, 1939. The 1940 cultivation was 3 per cent off, however, from 1938, the service said.

Average abandonment from natural causes after July 1 last year was .8 per cent, it was pointed out. This was slightly less than the 10-year average of .9 per cent.

The cultivation acreage increased generally throughout the cotton belt, the report said, only Florida and Virginia showing a decrease from last year. Florida's cultivation was 99 per cent of 1939. Virginia's 94.

Total cultivation for the United States was 25,077,000 acres.

Hopkins Quits Post
In Sunday School

A. C. Hopkins, for the past 14 years general superintendent of the Grant Park Baptist Sunday school, resigned Wednesday night at the monthly meeting of the church conference. His successor will be named next month.

Under the leadership of Mr.
Hopkins, the Sunday school grew from a membership of 350 to one of nearly 1,200. The conference accepted the resignation with regrets, then passed resolutions thanking him for his work in the Sunday school.

U. S. Indicts Man
In Theft of Mail

An indictment against Wesley Norman Hand was returned yesterday morning by the federal grand jury before Judge E. Marvin Underwood on a charge of theft of the United States mails.

The indictment charged Hand took a United States treasury check for the sum of $5.20 from a letter addressed to Ernest Gaston, 135 Lane street, Griffin, and that he forged Gaston's name to cash the check.

MADE IN ATLANTA BY WHITE PROVISION CO.

Forsyth Street Building Sold To Ex-Atlantan

Approximately $350,000 Understood To Have Been Value.

In one of the largest real estate trades made in the city for a long time, the Ten Forsyth Street building, eight-story office structure, immediately north of the Union depot station, was sold yesterday by the Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company to Lorenz Neuhoff, retired meat packer, now residing in Clearwater, Fla.

The price was not disclosed, but in the trade it is understood to have been valued at approximately $350,000. City tax assessment on the structure is $303,000. Several small properties figured in the deal.

Mr. Neuhoff lived in Atlanta for a number of years, and owns several other large investments here. The office building just purchased contains 140,000 square feet of floor space. Seven floors are occupied under lease to federal government agencies. First floor and basement are occupied by stores and other tenants, the property bringing in an annual rental of $85,000, it is said.

A few years ago the interior and exterior were completely remodeled and modernized. The building measures 113.2 feet on Forsyth street, 151 feet along the railroad, 140 feet on the west line and 149.5 feet on the north line. It has changed name and ownership several times during the past years, originally having been known as the Astell building, later as the Thrower building. For the past several years, it has been known as the Ten Forsyth Street building.

The sale was handled by J. H. Taylor, local real estate operator, with John E. Wells, representing the insurance company.

Park's Expansion Backed by Mayor

Mayor Hartsfield yesterday pledged co-operation to a delegation of West End citizens in their efforts to expand Mozley park while land is available for that purpose.

The group, accompanied by Alderman Lester R. Brewer and Councilmen John T. Marler and C. M. (Mac) Bolen, members of the fourth ward delegation in council, was composed of T. E. Bridges, H. H. Morton, E. W. Robinson and A. H. McAfee. They told the mayor that growth of residential districts make expansion of the park almost mandatory, and contended that unless additional park and playground facilities are acquired at an early date, any further development of the park will be blocked permanently.

Appraisers to Hear Talk by Kennedy

C. M. Kennedy, Atlanta engineer, will address the Atlanta chapter, Society of Residential Appraisers, at its meeting at 12:30 o'clock today in Rich's tea room.

His subject will be "Trend of Construction Cost," on which he is an authority, having devoted much time to its study locally and throughout the country.

England Will Organize Column To Kill Rumor

LONDON, July 11.—(AP)—Every man, woman and child in Britain is to be organized into a silent column pledged to kill rumor.

Talkers taken to task by hearers will be "invited to make contributions to charity" by dropping coins into "chatterboxes" in public places.

The Ministry of Information announced today the campaign would be started tomorrow.

Carol Aims Guns At British Tankers

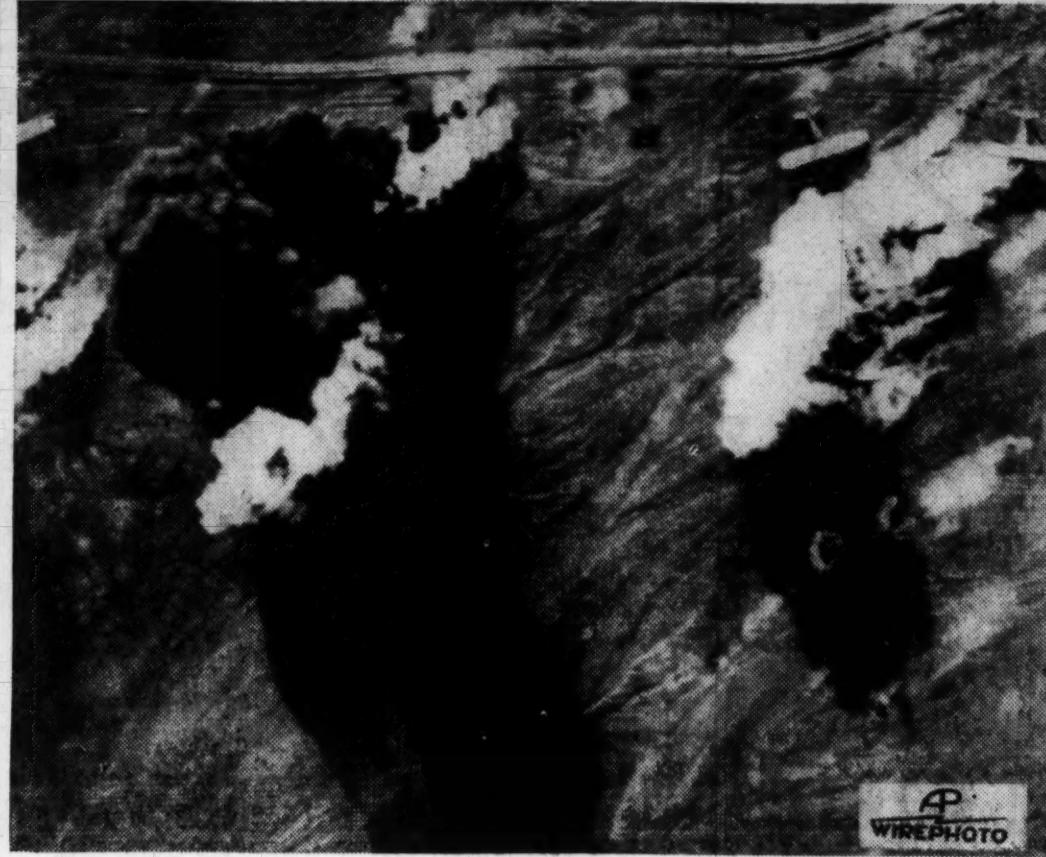

BUCHAREST, July 11.—(P)—The pro-Nazi Rumanian navy threw its weight into the oil scales against Great Britain today.

Gunboats of King Carol's fleet mounted guard over 50 British tankers lying idle in Rumanian ports, to prevent them from sailing to more friendly waters.

It was another move designed to forestall any British attempt to keep British-owned oil and other property from falling into the hands of Hitler.

Last week numerous British oil men were ordered to leave Rumania, apparently as a precaution against possible attempt to wreck the British-owned wells.

Every attic holds articles that Constitution Want Ads will sell for cash.

BRITISH BULL'S-EYES—The axis partners aren't taking all the initiative in Europe's war these days. Here British R.A.F. missiles blast Caproni high-wing tri-motor bombers on an Italian airport in East Africa. Note shadows cast by smoke clouds rising from bomb hits.

Vinson To Seek Funds for Navy, Marine Bases

Army Enlistments in June Break All Peace- Time Record.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(P)—Chairman Vinson, Democrat, Georgia, of the house naval committee, today introduced legislation authorizing the navy to proceed with a $250,000,000 housing program for naval personnel and civilians engaged in national defense work.

The measure also would authorize creation of a new marine corps base and a $15,000,000 expansion of naval training facilities. Although no site has been selected for the marine base, Vinson said it should be located at Guantanamo, Cuba, where the navy contemplates basing a sea-going version of Germany's hard-hitting "Panzer" divisions.

Housing construction which the bill would authorize would be available for sale or rental to the expanding naval or civilian forces engaged on the naval building program at either navy or private shipyards.

General George C. Marshall, army chief of staff, made the first pronouncement from the War Department on compulsory military training when he told reporters at a press conference that it was needed to make "essential" increases in the armed forces. He said these could not be obtained "on a voluntary basis."

Marshall is scheduled to testify tomorrow on the Burke-Wadsworth bill. It was understood he wanted enough men to increase the army to 500,000 or more men.

Major Harold N. Gilbert, of the adjutant general's department, reported today that the present army recruiting program, calling for an army of 280,000 enlisted men by August 30, was ahead of schedule.

He estimated the strength in enlisted men at 252,000 as of today. "In June there were more enlistments—22,500—than in any month in peacetime history of the army," he said.

Britain's fundamental purpose obviously is to bolster the naval blockade against Germany and Italy, but it was suggested that America might draw upon such British colonial surpluses as cocoa, while Britain would like to obtain such products as Argentine maize and possibly wheat and coffee from the projected American pool.

It was pointed out that the projected Havana pool would not seem to preclude the possibility of including strategic raw materials such as copper and nickel in the proposed pool if current supplies exceed domestic requirements.

POSTAL RECEIPTS UP.

Hitler's Stern Words Soften Balkan Crisis

Hungary, Bulgaria Back Down; Russia Denies Claims on Turkey.

BUDAPEST, July 11.—(P)—The precarious peace of southeastern Europe, hanging by a thread since Russia's Bessarabian invasion, seemed assured of at least temporary continuance tonight.

Hungary and Bulgaria again have postponed their territorial claims on Rumania, in deference to Germany's desires:

1. To maintain southeastern Europe on a full production basis for the Nazi war machine during the battle to conquer Britain.

2. To keep Soviet Russia from using Danubian confusion for another snatch of strategic territory.

The sudden switch came at about the time confident Prime Minister Pal Teleky and his Foreign Minister Count Istvan Csaky were traveling to Munich, expecting Germany and Italy would endorse Hungary's dream of immediate acquisition of the province of Transylvania.

Today the Hungarian ministers returned to Budapest, their claims shoved into the background by stern words from Adolf Hitler.

Exactly what happened is not yet clear. But large numbers of German troops, tanks, airplanes and motorized equipment suddenly appeared in German Poland, Slovakia and on the Hungarian-German frontier.

Then Russian spokesmen in Turkey declared it was "erroneous" to believe Josef Stalin had any intention of pressing claims on Turkey.

This may save you from an accident!

Stop taking chances with a windshield that's dirty or spotted with insects. Bon Ami Cake not only removes the dust and dirt, but also easily takes off squashed insects and sticky stains that make a mess on the glass. And this is important, too: Windshields cleaned with Bon Ami leave no dangerous "oily film" to cloud the glass and make it sticky. Instead, this cake cleanser polishes as it cleans—tends to make windshields shed dirt and stay clean longer.

Nix Questions Talmadge Plan To Free Man

Asks Prisoner's Name as Candidates Speak in Danville.

DANVILLE, Ga., July 11.—(AP)—Abit Nix demanded today that Eugene Talmadge reveal the identity of a prisoner that Nix said Talmadge in a campaign speech promised to free as soon as he became Governor.

"Why doesn't he reveal now the identity of this unnamed prisoner?" Nix shouted. "We are entitled to know whether it is some prominent convict whose face haunts our former Governor at night, or whether it is some humble man who has run afoul of the law."

"If he has a good case, it is the duty of this candidate to plead his cause before the pardon board now, and not wait until he assumes the office of Governor."

"I will promise one thing if, when I am Governor, he will bring the case before me and can convince me the man should be free, I will free him, as much as I am opposed to the pardon racket, but I want him to understand one thing now—there must be no money involved in it."

Nix said that Talmadge had declared in a recent campaign statement that there "still was one man in prison in Georgia that he would free the first day he would take office, if elected."

Nix was one of four gubernatorial candidates urging his case before middle Georgia voters here today; Talmadge, Hugh Howell and Columbus Roberts also spoke.

Roberts Speaks.

Roberts, in his address, criticized the diversion of state highway funds and the influence of "selfish interests."

"When I'm Governor of Georgia, as I expect to be next January, no road material man, no equipment dealer, or no one else with selfish interests to serve will have a secret key to the back door of my office," he said.

"I am financing my own campaign, and when I go into office I will be under financial obligations to no one."

Talmadge renewed his contention that every state department could be operated on present revenues.

"Every lick I ever get at a tax bill I cut it," shouted the former Governor, who, this year, as in previous campaigns, is wearing his red suspenders.

"The first statement I made in the campaign of 1932 was that the schools of Georgia should be supported over any function of our government," he said.

Simple But Smart

By Lillian Mae.

Restrained simplicity spells good taste. Add slenderizing details and you have pattern 4494, designed by Lillian Mae. Everything about this sports-frock flatters, slims, enhances. The young, rounded collar is just the right size to become you and may be in contrast. The front bodice buttoning lets you in and out of the frock without a struggle. Notice how the softly cut bodice lines are kept trimly in place by gathers below the shoulder yokes and darts above the waist-seam.

Pattern 4494 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3½ yards 39-inch fabric.

Foolish To Depend Entirely On a Diet To Keep Thin

By Ida Jean Kain.

The girl who struggles to keep thin by exercise of sheer will power over the calories takes on a lean, hungry expression and a plucked look about the chest and shoulders which make any man with a speck of gallantry want to rush out and buy her a nice bottle of milk!

Probably this aura of malnutrition is responsible for the more or less solid masculine objection to the general idea of reducing. And we're here to back them up in their claim that these girls would be infinitely more attractive for a little meat on their bones.

Anyone who depends entirely on a diet to keep thin is silly. Since there is proportionately much less weight on the upper part of the body, it is highly important to provide good firm muscle tissue that will fill out the hollows as the weight is reduced. It can't be done without exercise!

Swimming is the answer to any figure problem you may have. It makes the fat slim, the thin curved. It takes off fat where you are bulgy and rounds you out where you are bony so it's equally good whether you are too fat, too thin, or just the wrong shape.

The arm and leg strokes stretch you out slim through the midriff and remove your spare tire. Kicking flattens the tummy and slims the hips. The reach of the arms improves the bust contour and gives you a lovely pair of shoulders.

If the shallow-chested girls who won't eat for fear of gaining on who can't seem to eat enough to gain to normal weight would swim a lot this summer, they could quit worrying. Swimming would turn them into bathing beauties.

Children Bear the Brunt Of Parents' Incompatibility Mother, Daughter Must Part

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: I am writing to ask you to help me clear up a strange case between my mother and me. I love my mother. I have been the best daughter I know how to be but this doesn't satisfy her. A day never passes that she doesn't say something about my lack of feeling for her. If her friends come to see her she always cuts me down before them. I am popular with my crowd, hold several offices in clubs and organizations I belong to and in summer particularly there are a great many parties and picnics to attend. What do I hear? "Young people run around too much. They never stay at home." When I ask to cook supper with my friends she says "No indeed, you can't mess up the kitchen." This has been going on for four years and I have waited, thinking as she grew older she would soften toward me but she gets worse and worse. Now if you can tell me what's wrong I'll try to change it.

WRETCHED.

ANSWER:

Is your father living? Is he living with the family? Is he on good terms with your mother? If she's at daggers points with your father, if she's separated from your father the trouble probably lies there. If things are right between your parents and you have been as dutiful a daughter as you claim, then your mother's out of her head and should be taken to see a doctor.

It's queer but true that when a woman has trouble with her husband the children bear the brunt of it. If he's quarrelsome and she's disappointed in the love and affection she receives at his hands, she wants double share from the children. The mere fact that she expects and demands more cuts her down and makes it difficult for her to get what would normally come to her. But the woman doesn't grasp this. If she's separated from her husband sometimes she's a sore-headed bear with the cubs and of course the poor little cubs never understand why.

Then, too, there are cases where mother and daughter are natively antagonistic. In such a situation there is nothing but separation that will bring happiness to either one. I've seen a Persian cat with kittens one of which she adored, licked, mothered, hovered over while she treated another of the same litter as if it were an interloper, trespassing on her time, attention and food supply. Watch the animals to learn about the human animal and know that when native antagonisms exist, nothing can be done until weaning time arrives and then the solution is plain-separation.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

MY DAY: Progress Made By Women

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

LAKESIDE, Ohio.—Yesterday morning we drove back to Hyde Park from New York city. A group of some 30 ladies came to tea with me at 4 o'clock to discuss the possibilities of a documentary film to show the progress made by women in the last hundred years. In a film of this kind there are great possibilities to show what problems the women of the past had to meet to point to the development of this country. Women do so much to create the spirit of a nation that it will be particularly interesting to see the contribution made by our various racial strains to the formation of the idea on which America is built.

After dinner, we motored back to New York city to take the night train for Ohio, and here I am in Lakeside, preparing to give a lecture tonight.

I was very much interested in the "Declaration Against Conscription" issued by a group of 240 educators in yesterday's papers. It seems to me that these learned people who are excited about conscription and tie it up with military training alone, miss the point of the situation we face today. The American Youth Congress and these educators seem to me to be discussing the world of a year ago, not the world as it is today.

A year ago there was plenty of time to talk over indefinitely whether it was necessary for people to serve their country by developing themselves physically, by acquiring certain mechanical skills, and even by learning how to be soldiers if necessary. Above all, there was plenty of time to discuss what democracy meant to us and what we were willing to give in the way of service. Today that time is lacking. The quicker we learn to discipline ourselves; acquire mechanical skills; to organize ourselves for real use in our communities, the better for us.

Above all, we should accept the fact that democracy requires service from each and every one of us, not just from those who happen to want to volunteer. People say this can be done voluntarily and all they oppose is compulsory service. Here again, I would say, let us be realistic. We know human nature well enough to know that even the best of us, unless we have to do a thing, will try to get out of it now and then, if it is not quite convenient.

We think the other fellow needs to give service—and we will, too, some other time, but we need not do it now, for we are always prepared to serve if the need arises in the future. Educators know human nature and they realize that real democracy is only achieved when everyone has to do something.

Surely the value of our suffrage in a democracy is well proved; yet look at how many people find it inconvenient to vote. The test of democracy is before us today. Can we face the situation realistically, and voluntarily vote for ourselves the disciplines which are needed to make us able to meet the force of totalitarian governments?

Brady Gives Practical Advice On Treatment of Birthmarks

By Dr. William Brady.

Kindly explain the difference between birthmark and nevus. (fawn-color, yellowish, brown or black) or to dilated and overgrown blood vessels. Nevus is what we call it when we're anxious to persuade you to undergo treatment. If you fail to react favorably to that, we back off a bit, get set, and tackle you again, this time pronouncing it nevus vascularis. If you don't give up to nevus vascularis, then we can generally flatten you and proceed with the treatment when firmly but gently inform you that you have a hemangioma. Now just relax.

In the reader's case the difference amounted to approximately a dime. As in some cases it may be as much as $300 to $500. Birthmark is a spot or blemish in the skin, present at birth or becoming apparent in the early weeks of life, due to excessive pigmentation between birthmark and nevus. (fawn-color, yellowish, brown or black) or to dilated and overgrown blood vessels. Nevus is what we call it when we're anxious to persuade you to undergo treatment. If you fail to react favorably to that, we back off a bit, get set, and tackle you again, this time pronouncing it nevus vascularis. If you don't give up to nevus vascularis, then we can generally flatten you and proceed with the treatment when firmly but gently inform you that you have a hemangioma. Now just relax.

Hemangioma is Greek for tumor or swelling composed of multiplied and dilated blood vessels. Some misguided persons with hemangioma make the mistake of submitting to the efforts of unqualified operators to remove or obliterate the blemish. In any case such a mark may be safely treated only by a doctor of medicine and surgery.

Hemangioma is usually reddish or purplish, from pinhead to many square inches in area, flat or slightly elevated above normal skin level (so-called "port-wine stain"), or in some instances having a nodular or lobulated surface, soft, compressible, perhaps becoming larger or more tense and congested during exertion.

The earlier in life any birthmark is treated the more satisfactory the result will be. Treatment should begin before the child is three months old, or at any rate before the end of the first year.

Radium treatment shows its most marked effect in the first two months after application of the radium. Then for four to six months more progressive fading of the mark follows. A single treatment has proved sufficient for nearly a third of the hemangiomas; two and even three treatments have been required for the other two-thirds.

Summer Skins Need Speedy Double Care

By Lillian Mae.

The sun is bad enough, but when you add salt water and wind, your complexion just simply hasn't a chance. That is, unless you give it very special care during the months of vacation and fun.

After an all-day exposure to the drying effects of sun and water, you should use a light-textured, cooling cleansing cream. I recommend one which I'm told is compounded of the juices of cool, fragrant water lilies, to keep your skin satiny all summer.

This special summer cream feels so cool and refreshing as it removes dirt, dust and make-up! It does its job quickly and is ideal for use any time during the day when you want to cool off your face and revive its spirits before putting on a new make-up.

Let me give you a few beauty tricks devised to keep summer loveliness calmly unruffled and serene, regardless of soaring temperatures:

If your nose is shiny: Before applying make-up, dab on a special lotion I'll tell you the name of, for shiny noses, chins and foreheads.

It gives a smooth, dull finish and lasts a long time.

If you are inclined to squint: To avoid a new network of squint lines at the end of the summer, take 30 seconds off and apply on your eyelids a drop of a special herbal eye tissue oil. Used as a part of your make-up, this gleaming oil will prevent and help correct eye lines and at the same time give your eyes a chic, young sheen.

For a cooling minute make-up: At home or when you are out, use the fragrant, cooling make-up pads which cleanse quickly and leave a delicate foundation film on your skin so that make-up adheres beautifully and longer.

No, I didn't—but it's too bad," says Seiter, "because I finish promptly at 5:30 p.m.!"

Everyone on the set, including Miss Russell, Robert Benchley and Brian Aherne is eating plums; and Rosalind goes through the rehearsals rolling her tongue around her teeth.

Roz plays a wonderful secretary, in a wonderful office, to a wonderful boss (Aherne). (Why do these things always have to be a celluloid dream?) Benchley is lawyer to Aherne, and says he's feeling jittery for the first time in his film career because he is wearing make-up—also for the first time. "It gives you the funniest feeling," says Bob. His role is fairly straight and he's extremely well-dressed. "That's Roz's fault," he explains. "I looked a tramp in the other two pictures I made with her, and she insisted I clean up for this."

"Kay!" shouts Director Seiter, looking at Miss Russell.

"Dive me mean?" she asks. He does and apologizes profusely. In Seiter's last picture ("It's a Date") he directed Kay Francis, and she still confuses. After calling Rosalind "Kay" twice, it becomes a gag—and everyone calls her "Kay." I wish you could have seen Miss Russell's "slow burn." I left while the going was good, but just before, Benchley informs me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Phone me and I'll tell you the names of all the preparations mentioned above to keep you cool and attractive during the summer. I left while the going was good, but just before, Benchley informs me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

Today's Charm Tip.
For the Business Girl: Don't whimper or make sour remarks about that feminine person who is better treated by men. Her technique might bear a little of study with profit to you.

I'm taking up where we left off with Gloria in "The Under-Pup," says Pasternak. "She's going to be a normal child again. We're cutting out the glamour, her hair is now tied back, not all fluffed out like a movie queen, and I'm not letting her see the daily rushes. They made her too self-conscious. We're going back to real life for Gloria—making her a character—not a story."

To the producers who want Pasternak's formula for picture success—every single one of Joe's dozen pictures of the past four years, including seven Deanna Durbin's, has made a huge profit—here it is: "You've got to have one of two things for a picture today," says Joe—"sex and or heart."

Youths Plan Open House at Mission Camp

Atlantans Invited To Visit Underprivileged Children at Health Spot.

Atlantans will have an opportunity to see some of the city's underprivileged children fighting their way back to health and happiness at an "open house," to be observed at the Atlanta Mission's summer camp, near Hapeville, from 2 to 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Dr. Felton Williams, director of the mission, said some of the activities of the camp will be exhibited to the friends who come to the camp for the "open house."

More than 100 children already have been sent to the camp this summer and hundreds of others have been examined and are waiting to go if generous Atlantans supply the necessary funds to keep them there.

Several Sunday school classes have adopted whole cabins of youngsters, requiring $50 per week, but Dr. Williams emphasized that there is still a deficiency of funds, and urged those who can contribute to send their donations to the Atlanta Mission.

Anything that anyone will buy can be sold through a Constitution Classified Ad.

AROUND Atlanta

WITH THE CONSTITUTION STAFF

Louis Johnson, acting secretary of war, has announced through army headquarters here, that no army aircraft will be allowed in the future to take part in public ceremonies such as state fairs, opening of commercial airports, etc. The action was taken, Johnson said, as an aid to the expansion program of the air corps.

Army orders transferring First Lieutenant Eugene L. Brown from his post with the 22nd Infantry, Fort McPherson, to take the tank course at the Infantry school, Fort Benning will be revoked.

Major James Van V. Shufelt, cavalry, on duty with the Reserve Officers Training Corps at the University of Georgia has been transferred to fourth corps area headquarters for duty at Atlanta.

Lieutenant Colonel Charles T. Phillips, air corps, native of Atlanta, has been relieved of duty with the office of the chief of staff, Washington, D. C., and ordered to duty at Barksdale Field, Louisiana.

Women's Club of Aviation and the Airport Kiwanis Club will meet jointly at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the Hangar hotel.

Ladies' Oriental Shrine will sponsor a barbecue and dance at 7 o'clock Thursday night at Lakemore, on the Roswell road. Friends of the court are invited.

Women's Club of Aviation and the Airport Kiwanis Club will meet jointly at 12:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon in the Hangar hotel.

Lucy Dubois Dodd and Mrs. Olivia McWhorter Van Valkenburg, the only two women who passed the recent bar examination are to be guests of honor at a luncheon at 1 o'clock tomorrow given by the Georgia Association of Women Lawyers at the Colonial Grill. Mrs. Gertrude Harris, president, announced. The women and several men who were successful in the examination will be admitted to the bar at 11:30 o'clock tomorrow by Judge A. L. (Jack) Etheridge in Fulton superior court.

Recent heavy rains "sprung a leak" at the courthouse. During the downpour yesterday afternoon, workmen located a break in a water drain in the third floor wall of the pressroom. They welded it back together.

Vandals or burglars broke many windows of the E. P. Howell school building on Howell Mill road some time Wednesday night, County Policeman Cal Cates reported. He said that little was taken from the building, although the cost of repairing the windows would be considerable.

Votes of members of the Atlanta Bar Association on the best qualified candidates in the two races for superior court judge will be counted by officials of the association beginning at 1 o'clock this afternoon, it was announced. Lawyers in active practice are entitled to express their preference by selecting.

Ed Almand, chairman of the Fulton county commission, and a group of friends left yesterday for Florida on a fishing trip, to be gone several days.

Today in Atlanta Churches

Intermediate Girls' Auxiliary and Royal Ambassador chapter of the Capitol View Baptist church will hold a mission study class at 10 o'clock this morning at the home of Mrs. J. R. Higgins.

Intermediate Girls' Auxiliary of the Park Avenue Baptist church will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon with Mrs. U. C. Lamb, 593 Cameron street.

Rivers Pardons Lottery Convict

Jesse Reid, Negro convicted of lottery in Fulton criminal court May 10, has been pardoned by Governor Rivers while his appeal from the lower court sentence was still pending in the state court of appeals. Howard White, deputy clerk, was notified yesterday.

A conditional pardon freed Reid before he had served a single day of his 10-month sentence, imposed by Judge Jesse M. Wood. It was signed by S. Marvin Griffin, executive secretary to the Governor.

State Vocational Schools' Heads To Meet Today

Will Decide How Their Institutions Can Aid National Defense.

Heads of Georgia schools which feature vocational training will meet in Athens today to ponder the part their institutions can play in the training of workers for jobs in industries essential to national defense.

Among those invited to be present are representatives from the Atlanta high schools, Fulton county schools, Georgia Tech, the Augusta, Macon, Albany, Columbus and Waycross school systems, the Vocational and Trades school at Monroe and the Georgia Teachers' College at Columbus.

Plan is sponsored and financed by the United States Office of Education at Washington, in cooperation with the state departments of education. Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, is executive officer of the state director of vocational education.

Train Two Types.

The plan contemplates the training of two types of persons. One is those now employed who would like additional intensive training. The other is the training of persons taken from the rolls of the state employment agencies. In this group persons certified for WPA will be given preference, and will be paid while in training on the same basis as they are paid of work projects. Unemployed not on WPA will not be paid during training.

Where schools have facilities for training trainees will receive intensive instruction in the manufacturing, building and maintenance of aircraft engines, in ship building, maintenance and repair, automobile manufacture, maintenance and repair, and in the electrical, forging, boiler and heavy steel and in electricity, forging, boiler - making, foundry work, sheet metal work, woodworking, chemical manufacture, ammunition-making and the making of light and heavy guns and shells.

Equipment Unknown.

To what extent Georgia's schools are equipped to participate will not be known until after today's meeting. Mr. Mobley pointed out. No money will be provided for the construction of buildings or for purchasing equipment, and in those fields where the schools are not equipped to train men, it may become necessary to find cooperation in industry, he said.

He also made it clear that if there are other schools not listed above which feel qualified to train vocational classes, they will gladly be accepted in the program.

The Georgia plan, drawn up by Dr. Collins and approved by the State Board of Education, is now in Washington for final approval. It calls for the appropriation of $200,000 to get the Georgia program under way.

Training will start as soon as Washington approves the plan submitted, and from 3,000 to 5,000 men are expected to be in training by September, Mr. Mobley said.

at the CITY HALL

Routine matters are slated for consideration at 8 o'clock tonight at the semi-monthly meeting of city council's police committee, Councilman C. M. (Mac) Bolen, chairman, said. No trials are scheduled and no member of the department is under suspension because of charges, it was said.

Miss Lillian Everitt, secretary of the Atlanta parks department, yesterday began her vacation in Florida. During her absence Mrs. Dick Respass, assistant, will take over her desk.

Nurse attendants were being sought yesterday by the city personnel department and files were opened for applications to be received until noon July 20. The pay will be $60 monthly plus maintenance. Applicants must not be younger than 21 years old or more than 41.

Popular Atlanta Group Opens Summer Homes at Highlands

• • • THE RUSTIC BEAUTY and numerous sporting diversions afforded at picturesque Highlands, N. C., provide a dazzling lure that few Atlantans find themselves able to resist. Within the past few years, a colony of Atlanta-owned summer cottages has sprung up at his delightful resort, with the result that during the hot months there is always a large group of Atlantans staying both at cottages and at the attractive clubhouse. Just now the list of vacationists there reads like a Gated City social register!

Among those occupying their homes for the summer are Bobby and Mary Malone Jones and their three children, Bobby III, Clara and Mary Ellen. Every day that the sun shines finds the elder Bobby absorbed in his favorite sport which won for him international fame as the world's greatest golfer. The whole family, however, takes pleasure in tennis, badminton, riding and swimming, to say nothing of the social activities among the various contingents of every age.

The Lee Ashcrafts are also among the homeowners and have with them their son and daughter, Claude and Rebecca Ashcraft McGinnis, and their lovely grandchildren, Claude Jr., Mary Lee and Eleanor.

John and Josephine Connors Grant, with their children, have taken possession of a cottage for the remainder of the summer and will be joined by various friends for weekend visits.

Jeannette Bailey Maddox is also among the summer residents, and with her at her cottage are her mother, Mrs. A. H. Bailey, and her sister, Beverly Bailey.

Veazy Rainwater, of Pensacola and Atlanta, has opened his handsome home and has as his guests his children, Veazy Jr., Lupton, Brown and Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Rainwater, and Mrs. Martha Edmondson.

Also occupying their summer homes are Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Kluse, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holcomb, of Miami, formerly of Atlanta, who have with them their children, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holcomb Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. Hugh McMillan, of Atlanta; Mrs. Arthur Howell and her son and daughter, "Buster" and Mary Adair Howell Bird; Mr. and Mrs. William Wardlaw Sr., Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Bliss, Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Townsend, Miss Rosalie Howell, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Black, Mrs. Shorter Rankin and her daughter, Margaret; Mr. and Mrs. James S. Floyd, who have with them their son and daughter, Emory and Frances Floyd Cocke; the Charles E. Shephards, the Robert W. Crenshaws and Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Gould.

• • • THE WIT and charm of Washington's "Evie" Robert has once again been paid complimentary tribute! This time

Mr. and Mrs. Smith Celebrate Anniversary.

Among interesting affairs of last evening was the party at which Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Smith were hosts, celebrating their fifth wedding anniversary.

The party was held at the home of Mr. Smith's mother, Mrs. J. L. Middlebrooks, on Windsor street.

Invited for the occasion were 30 friends of the hosts.

Throughout the house a profusion of summer flowers were effectively used.

Garden Club Meets.

Mrs. H. I. McArthur and Mrs. N. A. New won the ribbon at the informal flower show held at the July meeting of the Whitefoord Garden Club held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Fred Holland on Arkwright place.

Mrs. E. L. Brock was elected to membership. Potted plants were presented by the hostess.

A GLORIOUS HOLIDAY

in picturesque Canada awaits Morris and Martha Pritchard Brandon, who leave today by motor to spend several weeks touring the British dominion.

In Toronto, the "Queen City of Canada," the popular couple will view such points of interest as the provincial parliament buildings, the University of Toronto and churches of rare architectural beauty. This city, you know, boasts the tallest building in the British Empire, as well as the largest hotel and department store, and its harbor development is unique as a fresh-water port.

Martha and Morris will then enjoy the historic beauty of Quebec, which has often been called the most absorbingly interesting city of America. There are really two cities to be seen here—the old French city, the Quebec of the seventeenth century and ancient capital of Canada, and modern Quebec, the provincial capital of today. The two distinct, yet unified, form a great center of art, sacred and secular history, architecture and religion.

Visiting the Gaspe peninsula, the Atlantans will revel in the magnificence of rural scenes unspoiled by the bustle of civilization, after which they will visit Mr. and Mrs. Robert Whatley at their lovely home in Presque Isle, Maine.

Mrs. Whatley, you know, is the former Anne Lane Newell, of this city, and numbers many friends here whom she and her husband have entertained upon various occasions in their home.

Martha and Morris will climax their trip in gay New York, where they will enjoy the World's Fair, shows at Broadway playhouses, as well as the city's inimitable night life, before returning home.

P. E. O. Chapters Give Dinner.

Lakemoore Club was the scene of a dinner party given by members of P. E. O. Chapters A and B and their husbands recently.

Novel entertainment of pirate bridge, arranged by the social committee of both chapters, followed the dinner. Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Sturges, who have recently moved to Atlanta. Mrs. Sturges is a member of a P. E. O. chapter in Lakeland, Fla., their former home.

Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Bentley, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Ewing, Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Freddie, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Mulligan, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Ted R. Ray, Mr. and Mrs. Walton Reeves, Mr. and Mrs. P. R. Rutherford, Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Scott, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Steinrich, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Sturmer and Captain and Mrs. D. H. Summers.

Miss Chafin and Mr. Hansard Announce Wedding Plans

McDONOUGH, Ga., July 11.—Cordial interest of a wide circle of friends throughout the south centers in the announcement made today of the wedding plans of Miss Myrl Downs Chafin and Victor Bond Hansard. The marriage of this popular couple will be solemnized July 18 at the Covington Presbyterian church. Rev. David Davies will perform the ceremony at 7:30 o'clock before an assemblage of friends and relatives of the couple.

A musical program will be presented by Mrs. Ada Livingston Bradshaw, organist and cousin of the bride-to-be, and Miss Katherine Moon, soloist.

Miss Hester Chafin will be the sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids will be Miss Sara Hansard, of Carrollton, sister of the groom-elect; Miss Margaret Ward, of McDonough; Miss Mildred Chafin, of Atlanta, cousin of the bride-elect, and Mrs. E. G. Baraham, of Toccoa.

Groomsmen will be Fred Hansard, of Atlanta, brother of the groom-elect; J. P. Sewell, of Newnan; Sam Bruce, of Rome, and Clifford Owens, of Canton.

The bride-elect will be given in marriage by her father, Samuel Christopher Chafin, and they will be met at the altar by the groom-elect and Kerry Foster, of Carrollton, who will be best man.

Social affairs which have complimented the bride-elect include the party at which Mrs. Aiken Chafin was hostess on Monday at her home last evening, honoring Miss Jane Clippinger, whose marriage to James Lockwood will be an interesting event of August 3.

Mrs. William Carmichael, mother of the hostess, assisted in entertaining.

The buffet table was centered with a graceful arrangement of white flowers and throughout the house white garden flowers were effectively used.

Shi Is Named Line Coach at Tech High

Ex-Georgia Ace To Begin Duties In September

Joins Scarborough After Success in 1st Year at West Fulton.

By JOHN MARTIN.

Tech High's football team made a long gain last night when Allen Shi, former Georgia star tackle, signed as line coach of the Smithies.

He will take up his new duties at the first September drill, joining Sidney Scarborough, former Auburn quarterback, to form one of the yougest head-coaching combines in Georgia's top prep gridiron circles.

SUCCESSFUL RECORDS.

Tech High's gain is West Fulton's loss. Shi went to E. P. McLain's year-old school on Bankhead highway last fall and made a successful record in football, basketball and baseball. His gridiron team won three, lost four and tied one, a remarkable showing in view of the green first-year material. His basketballers were runners-up in the fifth district tournament an, his baseball team annexed the N. G. I. C. championship.

Before going to West Fulton Shi was assistant to Smoky Joe Martin at Decatur. His teams there won the 1938 championship of the N. G. I. C., and finished second in 1939.

A great part of the success of the Bulldogs was attributed to the play of linemen tutored by the hard-working Maconite.

Shi has built a reputation as one of the outstanding young coaches in the game. In fact, he has been considered for several college posts, and likely will wind up in this company before too many more seasons.

"He's one of the best I ever saw," McLain said. "I don't want to accept his resignation, but if his opportunities for advancement are better elsewhere I'd be the last one to stand in the way. Tech High is getting a valuable man."

MOLLER VS. TODD.

Also getting into the finals was Larry Moller of Quincy, Ill., who lost to Todd in the finals of the tournament at Oklahoma City a year ago. They will be third-round opponents.

The co-medalists, Art Doering, of Chicago, and Jim Ferrier, of Sydney, Australia, advanced, having beaten the two rounders of the former downing Chuck Boettcher, of Rochester, 4 and 3, and Lloyd Young, of Minneapolis, 4 and 3. Ferrier, four under par for 21 holes, trimmed George Pratt, of Pipestone, Minn., 6 and 5 in the first round and Tommy Hamper of St. Paul, 6 and 4 in the second.

STAGES COMEBACK.

While yielding physical advantages to Vines, Campbell gave away nothing in ability to play golf and after missing a six-foot putt on the 18th green fought back until on the 22d hole where Vines missed the green and needed a bogie four to lose. They had 75's at the end of regulation 18 holes.

The two rounds of play today failed to produce a single major casualty, with all the favorites still in the field, including Harry Todd, of Dallas, Texas, the defending champion, who gained a one-up margin over Lieutenant Paul Clifford, of Franklin, N. H., in the second round.

AGGRESSIVE PLAYER.

Shi played three years under Harry Mehre at Georgia and was regarded as one of the outstanding linemen in the conference in 1934 and 1935. He was rugged and aggressive and has carried this style over into coaching, frequently demonstrating his tactics in contact with his players.

He is familiar with Scarborough's system and will fit into the Smithie set-up, like oil.

"I don't know what we'll have," he admitted, "but you can say that we'll be hitting just as hard as the other fellow down there on the line."

Amateurs Clash Tonight at Lake

A big evening for Atlanta fight enthusiasts is assured tonight with eight amateur bouts slated for the Lakewood arena at 8:30 o'clock.

The headline match will be between Harland Hill, West End heavyweight who has seven consecutive victories to his credit, and Jack Clark, a tough soldier batter from Fort Benning.

Bill Finley, Atlanta lightweight, will tangle with Kid Gardener, Tampa pugilist, in the three-round semifinal bout. Six other three-rounders round out the card.

Rifle Shoot Set At Fort Saturday

The Sons of Legion rifle matches and instruction course, to be held at the Fort McPherson range Saturday afternoon, has attracted such wide interest as to indicate an all-time high in attendance. Members from all parts of the state have expressed their intention of competing in the matches or participating in the course of instruction.

First Baseman, Dolf Camilli, came here nursing a badly bruised neck and isn't in condition yet to play. He was struck by one of Buddy Hasset's flying knees in a collision at first base in Boston's 11-day western trip.

Only a handful of Dodgers have come through the first half of the season without something happening to them. Dixie Walker, Gus Mancuso, Herman Franks and a dozen others are the only Dodgers who escaped injury.

First Baseman, Dolf Camilli, came here nursing a badly bruised neck and isn't in condition yet to play. He was struck by one of Buddy Hasset's flying knees in a collision at first base in Boston's 11-day western trip.

All the other members of the Dodgers' field have been laid up at one time or another. Pete Coscarat was out for 10 days with a spiked knee. Rees was beamed once and was out another time with a Charley horse. Leo Durocher has had arm trouble and had to take himself out of the lineup another time after a collision with Ernie Koy at second on a double.

Play. Cookie Lavagetto was troubled with a bad shoulder.

VOSMIK OUT TWICE.

Joe Vosmik injured his chest in a collision with Slaty Marion, of the Cards, and then after he recovered he hurt his hip sliding into the plate. Charlie Gilbert suffered a cut leg.

Casey was bothered with arm trouble before he was hit in the head. Luke Hamlin had sciatica, Whit Wyatt had a sore elbow and Van Mungo left the club to have an operation performed on his shoulder at Johns Hopkins hospital.

That 1918 Fight "Listen, pardner, could you give some of us a little dope on that fight between Jack Dempsey and Porky Flynn at the old city auditorium in 1918?"

Well, so long as he didn't say, "Listen, you little dope, can you give us some information, etc?" it is a pleasure to ring in a fellow who saw the fight.

I refer to William Chenault Munday. It is giving away Mr. Munday's age to reveal that he not only saw, but remembers, details of the Dempsey-Flynn embroil, but here goes—

"The scene was the old auditorium and the time was early in 1918 when a youthful tiger from Utah was affording glove slumber to every opponent encountered—good boys, mediocre lads and palookas alike—in a ruthless campaign for a chance at the heavyweight crown then adorning the cranium of Jess Willard.

"He was matched here with a veteran who it was advertised would check his advance, one Porky Flynn. The scrap received a tremendous build-up. It was advertised that here was one man who would arrest this young upstart who had knocked out Fred Fulton in 18 seconds and 'twas said had hit Bill Brennan on the head so hard he broke both ankles. And Fred Fulton and Bill Brennan at the time were top-notchers.

"So the fans gathered with high expectations. And what happened long will be green in their memory. They saw in one corner a scowling, black-haired, unshaven youth of 23, so nervous that his trainers could hardly keep him in the seat for the clarion call—a veritable picture of determination. In the other, Mr. Flynn, cool and calm and somewhat amused by the antics of what he considered a too inexperienced foeman.

"The bell! And before this cool and calm Flynn could emerge from his corner, the scowling, black-haired, unshaven youth of 23 was all over him. A left jab, a right cross, then a left hook, another right cross, and the curtain was run down in less than half a minute.

"From then on Dempsey went on to receive his golden opportunity and batter the gigantic Willard to what Grandland Rice termed an 'unrecognizable pulp.' And became the most popular titleholder in any class in all ring history."

That's the way it went, pardner. And 22 years later it took the same Dempsey 4 minutes and 58 seconds to knock out a porky wrestler who had no defense.

Mr. Munday also saw that. And he is still shaking his head sadly at the thought of what the inexorable march of time does to a man.

With Pleasure William Najour asks a slight favor and it is granted with pleasure. His letter explains everything—

"Dear Jack: I would appreciate it very much if you would put this article in your column."

"President Trammell Scott is trying the best in his ability to do his duty as president of the Southern League."

"He was elected by the leaders of the eight teams represented in the Southern League."

"I want to commend President Scott for doing his duty in the first game of the crucial Atlanta-Nashville series when he suspended and fined Catcher Charley George, of the Nashville club, for too much arguing and tearing down the door of the dressing room."

"This act shows that President Scott is not being partial with any team and as long as these nuisances continue, he will do the same to all trouble-makers. As long as they do their duties, President Scott will do his duties."

"Sincerely,

"WILLIAM NAJOUR."

Who's Next? Will some energetic salesman for a sporting goods house please sign up Miss Betty Jameson to a professional golf contract immediately? And while you're at it, see if Miss Jane Cothran wouldn't like to turn pro, too.

Not that our Miss Dorothy Kirby can't lick Patty Cobb, who turned pro Wednesday, or Miss Jameson or Miss Cothran. But it wouldn't hurt to have all of them out of the way with the National Women's Golf tournament coming up.

Dorothy Kirby has gone to the finals only to be beaten by Miss Jameson. Maybe she could get her the next time. Still, the pro idea doesn't sound at all bad.

The Buyers Are Buying!

Reports from New York, where the buyers from the retail stores over the United States are gathered to buy for the fall and winter, are encouraging. A telephone call to The Constitution yesterday from the head of one of Atlanta's and one of the southeast's largest retail firms brought the following news:

"The market is filled with more buyers than have seen here in some years. They are buying, basing their buying on the belief that business will be good in the fall.

"When I was here four weeks ago the retail business was jittery and the talk was of war of Europe. Today the jitters are gone. The talk is of confidence in our own preparedness campaign and of politics.

"The President's speech had a very fine effect. When he asked for preparedness funds and pledged our soldiers would not be sent to Europe's battlefields, it had a most stimulating effect.

"The concern I felt here four weeks ago is gone. The buyers are here in great numbers and they are buying. Retail business has confidence in the fall and winter business."

Such report means only one thing. Those in the world's greatest market, that of New York, have their fingers on the pulse of business. They believe it will be good in the fall because they have faith in their own country; in its preparedness campaign, in its ability to protect this country and its citizens; and in its future.

News that the buyers are buying is good news. It means those closest to business and those closest to the public's attitudes, are optimistic.

The Soap Box Derby

Atlanta's famous Soap Box Derby is drawing near—the date is July 27.

But there is plenty of time to build a car and get into the game, it is pointed out by M. Van Deventer, chairman of the committee of the annual race sponsored by The Constitution.

"Two winners of the north Georgia championship didn't start building their cars until our days before the race," he said a day or two ago. "Plenty of time for a boy with a mechanical turn of mind to assemble four wheels and build a body and get into the game."

Great fun, these races of boy-built scooters, without motors.

True, they run only down hill. But so do the sleds of boyhood in the colder states. So do the sleds of the great races seen in the news media.

Building these derby racers teaches young-timers something about streamlining. And friction. And engineering as a whole. They can't be "doped" and they can't be fed fancy gasoline. The gradient is the same for all. But the youngster who builds the racer with the least resistance—and who learns to handle it to the best advantage—is pretty sure to win.

Here's a How-De-Do

This is simply a suggestion, but it might be that what the Atlanta Humane Society needs at the kennels is a voice teacher. One can sympathize with the complaint of near-by residents of the Tenth street and Howell Mill road section that yipping and howling dogs constitute a nuisance. Yet the memory of the melodic song of the hound heard across the wide fields suggests that proper training of canine vocal cords would alleviate the agony of the complaining populace.

Of one thing we may be sure, and that is a court order will not shun a lonely, distraught and lost puppy. No man or beast could be more unhappy. Or more vocal.

Now a proper voice teacher, brought from one of the fine choruses of the Georgia countryside, might be able to scale the bedlam into a harmonious whole; one which would lull the neighbors into dreamless slumber and soothe nerves shattered by indiscriminate and disconcerting yipping, yapping and plain howling.

"Debarking" has been ruled out as cruel, as it would be indeed. The solution must be one in keeping with the ingenuity of dog owners. The question is serious, and if a yowl teacher will not do, then what will?

The Sooner the Better

The best argument yet advanced for the legislation requiring registration of foreign-controlled organizations, now pending before congress, was offered this week by Wilhelm Kunze, national leader of the German-American Bund. His argument against the legislation was, in substance, that it would force the Bund out of existence. No better result could be hoped for, and the sooner the better.

Appearing before a senate committee at his own request, Kunze mirrored the attitude of the organization toward Germans who have migrated to the United States, contending without shame that they must remain hyphenated Americans with divided loyalties to this country and to the land of their forebears. Nothing is more foreign to the conception of all Americans that they are citizens of the United States, owing allegiance only to this country. Yet Kunze insisted that "the blood in my bones makes me a German-American." German first, as one senator expressed it.

Events overseas have proved these organizations of hyphenated Germans either voluntarily or by force enter into treasonable activities, and that this country cannot afford the luxury of permitting the doctrines of world revolution and hatred engendered by Nazism to be spread throughout the land by organizations insisting upon their "right" to dual nationalism.

This country, rather, must insist that Americans devote their entire allegiance to this nation and the principles that have made it possible for them to come here and live in peace and without restriction. Particularly is this so in the instance of Germans, the majority of whom fled from that country because of intolerable persecution over a period of 100 years.

There is room here for but one loyalty—to the United States. If Kunze and his hyphens so admire the doctrines of Hitler that they wish to advance them, let them return to the land they and their fathers left voluntarily to become residents of a free country.

It is perhaps significant that Kunze testified that the Bund wanted only to "help preserve and reconstitute the American republic." Note the use of the word "reconstitute." Governments are "constituted" by legal means; in this country by the will of the founders. The Bund would like to "reconstitute" that republic.

By all means, pass that law.

It was King Carol who took a bath attendant along in a London royal procession. Getting caught, however, between Red Russia and Nazi Germany is the real massage.

Add Air Notes

A plane, flying at a height of 17,000 feet, flew from Los Angeles to New York in 12 hours and 14 minutes.

Except for the take-off and the approach to the landing field its swift passage went unnoticed.

In his initial speech on preparedness the President spoke of the possibility of hostile bases in South America or on islands near the United States.

The flight from Los Angeles to New York is well within the same distance range as the flights from potential bases.

This aspect of the flight, by the plane which carried 15 passengers and a crew of six, overshadows the commercial features. At least for the time being.

With their many captured documents, uncovered plots and the like, the Nazi apologists are sitting as pretty as the famous Dallas defendant with five alibis.

They think that Joe Stalin, who was to hold the Fuehrer's coat during the fight, may be trying it on for size.

The first tuna of the season caught off the New England shore weighed 570 pounds, the boys figuring for a minute they had hooked Rhode Island.

Who now remembers the good old peaceful days, when you had the nightmare and then woke up, instead of vice versa?

Utopia there are only as many great public questions as there are right answers.

Editorial of the Day

SENSELESS DISCRIMINATION.

(From The St. Louis Post-Dispatch.)

The bill which President Roosevelt signed over the weekend providing that the 3,500,000 aliens in this country be registered and fingerprinted is a plainly incomplete and grossly discriminatory measure.

A law of this sort is either needed or it isn't. If the danger from Fifth Column activities is so great as to demand such a sweeping measure, then the law should cover everybody. It should apply to full-fledged citizens as well as to citizens-in-the-making.

In signing the bill, President Roosevelt said it did not carry "any stigma or implication of hostility" toward aliens. This may be true as far as the President and congress are concerned, but the people affected will inevitably feel it at they are being singled out and subjected to treatment usually reserved for persons suspected of crime.

In the circumstances, we see no objection to a universal registration and fingerprinting law. Tens of thousands of citizens have voluntarily filed their fingerprints with the Department of Justice as a protection in case of amnesia or of accidents.

If we are going to fingerprint 3 per cent of the residents of the country, we should fingerprint everybody. It has been abundantly demonstrated in every country which has been taken over by Germany that Fifth Column crimes are not limited to aliens. If the guilty aliens had not had native accomplices, they would not have been much of a menace, anyway.

A realistic approach to the problem of preventing espionage and sabotage, as well as a minimum regard for the sensibilities of the aliens who are citizens-to-be, demands that we either drop the fingerprinting idea altogether or make it all-inclusive.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

THE GROGGY DEMOCRATS

WASHINGTON, July 11.—

What may happen to the Democratic party during the oncoming campaign, no man can tell. As of today, however, on the eve of the Chicago convention, one thing is abundantly plain. After seven years of triumphant self-confidence, the Democrats have suddenly gone groggy at the knees. Except in the little band of New Dealers, whose reliance on the President amounts to an act of faith, the morale of the party has broken down.

Outside the New Deal group, leading Democrats talk about the struggle ahead in the tone of an unfortunate stumblebum about to be herded into the ring with Joe Louis. They predict victory, of course. That is the customary thing to do. But even as they make their predictions one detects a slight catch in their voices, like the catch in the voice of the stumblebum when he loudly tells the sports reporters, "Why, I'll have the big ape down at the end of the third round."

STRAWS ON THE HILL

The signs of this swift collapse in Democratic morale are most obvious. Virtually all the Democratic senators and representatives are ready to give support or lip service to a presidential third-term effort.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, was boldy talking third party only a few days ago, now telling his friends that he will simply seek re-election to the senate, and will not bolt the party if the President runs again.

Senator Sheridan Downey, of California, who once hoped to be the party candidate himself, is said to be planning a walk on the third-term issues. Otherwise, even the most conservative leaders take the line, "The President has asked for it. He's knocked down every other candidate. And now he's damn well got to take it and like it."

Men more friendly to the White House simply describe the President as "the only hope."

The trouble is that, if the President does not run, all the party workers, all the moderate Democrats, all the New Dealers and the jobholders will simply surrender their cause in advance. It used to be only the New Dealers who argued, "The President's the only man who can win."

Now the vast majority of the rank-and-file organization Democrats share the New Dealers' conviction. But if the President decides to run, although even so conservative a Democrat as Harry F. Byrd, of Virginia, is not ready to make a public demonstration against the third term, the right-wingers are just sour and gloomy enough to lie down completely during the campaign.

Clearly, the President can only escape the nomination by pleading ill health. And even if he should produce a doctor's certificate to support such a plea, a huge number of men in his party would still be bitter against him for "knocking down the other candidates," while a certain type of publicist would probably accuse him of having forged the doctor's name.

Clearly, it will be incredibly difficult for the President to rally and unite a party in which one sector of opinion considers him a sort of long-shot bet, while another wants to see him run and be beaten.

At the moment, it is almost universally assumed in Washington that the President's choice will be to run, although few forecasters fail to add the hedge that "he's a great man for last-minute surprises." Rumors as to his plans are that he will replace James A. Farley with the amiable but unexcited Frank Walker as chairman of the national committee, and that he will avoid the Chicago convention, delaying his acceptance speech until September. Neither maneuver is calculated to arouse the swift enthusiasm and quick hope of victory which the Democrats now so badly need.

CHEERFUL REPUBLICANS

The reason is not far to seek for the unpleasant situation in which the Democrats and the President now find themselves. If the Republicans at Philadelphia had chosen any other candidate, the Democrats' self-confidence would not have been shaken for an instant.

The President would have retained his freedom of choice, for there would have been far less party pressure on him to take the job and save the day. But the Republicans nominated Wendell Willkie.

It is no time, as yet, to start calling Willkie a wonder-worker. But he has about him the atmosphere of success which, in itself, is almost half the battle. The Republicans went into the 1932 campaign with Hoover much in the mood of the gloomiest Democrats today. They went into the 1936 campaign with Landon knowing they had two strikes on them. Now they are suddenly feeling their oats in a most amazing and almost undignified way. The old crowd is out. A new one, symbolized by House Leader Joseph W. Martin, Willkie's choice for campaign manager, is in. For the time being, at least, the Republicans are as cheerful as their rivals are depressed.

Romantic Nova Scotia

It has been proposed, by a congressional committee, that the United States lease or purchase a site for naval and air base in Nova Scotia, a British province. Few Americans know anything about this romantic and beautiful territory.

Something of its allure is caught in the following story from Halifax, capital of Nova Scotia and chief British naval station in North America.

HALIFAX, July 11.—While Nova Scotia's Evangeline country is best known to Americans, motorists who explore other sections of this sea-faring province, find real beauty in its quiet, pastoral towns and lonely fishing villages, nestled among rocky, surf-drenched headlands.

Fortunately, these out-of-the-way places, so picturesque in both setting and tradition, are fairly accessible to the province's main highways and towns. Their charm, however, lies not only in their natural beauty, but in their leisurely pace and quaint, old-fashioned ways.

Lowliest of Nova Scotia's rock-bound villages is Peggy's Cove, just 25 miles southwest of Halifax. Sheltered by a nest of smooth, gray-blue rocks, this tiny village with its trim, garden-fringed houses and its fleet of fishing boats, has long been a rendezvous for artists. Stretching out beyond is Peggy's Point, a long finger of granite, beaten into strange formations by centuries of pounding surf. Herring Cove, another delightful fishing village with sea-swept cliffs typical of the Cornish coast, lies just west of Halifax on the harbor.

Nova Scotia's coastline from Halifax to Yarmouth is a maze of bays and inlets, dotted with islands and backed by high cliffs. A fine paved highway follows the shore, dipping down to the sea, then winding inland through fields sweet with the smell of clover. One of the oldest roads in Canada, it passes through towns rich in Nova Scotia lore and history. Chester is one of them. Situated at the head of beautiful Mahone Bay, it is a prosperous town, where green land and blue sea are splashed with white houses and white sails.

Bridgetown, on the same peninsula, reached its peak in the 18th century, when it was the chief port of Nova Scotia. It is a quiet, unspoiled town, with a fine harbor and a long, sandy beach.

Yarmouth, on the opposite side of the peninsula, reached its peak in the 18th century, when it was the chief port of Nova Scotia. It is a quiet, unspoiled town, with a fine harbor and a long, sandy beach.

Differences Between Partners

BY DOROTHY THOMPSON

The attempt of the French to come to terms with their conquerors by setting up a Fascist government in France may give them for a short time the illusion that they are not really conquered, but have become one of the victorious gang. But sooner or later it is to be expected that ideology will prove to be less important than conflicting national interests unless the Fascist ideology goes a lot further to the Left than it has done already and merges into something indistinguishable from international socialism. This, too, is possible. But it has not happened yet.

DIFFERENT INTERESTS

The building of Pan-European-Pan-Fascist Europe—is being accomplished by the Hitler regime, but it is being done by a partnership, not by an individual, and with Russia as a not altogether silent partner. As long as there is anything left on the globe for the Fascist powers to conquer, the Axis will probably stick together. But it is a mistake, I believe, to think that eventually the various tendencies now latent and submerged will not manifest themselves openly.

The interests of Germany and Italy, of Italy and Russia, and of Russia and Germany, are not identical. Mussolini dreams of a Roman Empire. In practical terms that means a Latin Union: Italy, France, Spain, Portugal, with control of the Mediterranean, Adriatic, Aegean Seas and the whole of northern Africa and the Near East. In this Latin Union Italy considers herself the leader by reason of her Fascist "regeneration" and by reason of her "demographic dynamism."

Italian vital statistics have been ready to present to every foreign correspondent figures to prove that Italy is rapidly becoming a more numerous nation than France, by reason of her larger birth rate. I believe that it is true that there are some two million more Italians today between the ages of 20 and 45 than there are Frenchmen, even though the populations of the two countries at the outbreak of the war were approximately the same. Italy is "younger" than France, from a demographic viewpoint. And the French losses in the war, which are between one and two million men, will increase the discrepancy. The Latin Union idea has existed for a long time. In 1935 it looked as if it might be possible to wean France away from England into close co-operation with Italy. Pierre Laval, in France, was the chief proponent of this idea. Laval was anti-English and thought highly of the "natural" "racial" ties between France and Italy.

The success of the Eden policy at Geneva, or rather the half success, which resulted in sanctions against Italy with the collaboration of France, but sanctions so half-heartedly applied that they were valueless in stopping the Ethiopian War, actually drove Mussolini into alliance with Hitler—an alliance that neither he nor the Italian people really welcomed. Mussolini at that time became convinced that his Latin Union could be achieved only by the conquest of France and her forcible detachment from the British alliance. The Italian-French Union, which in 1935, might have been effective on some basis of equality—so runs the argument—now is effected forcibly under the leadership of Rome.

For this idea of the Roman Empire of Latin race, the collaboration of Franco and of a Portuguese government that can be sundered from Britain, is also essential. Undoubtedly Mussolini at present is, to an extent, supporting France. He does not want a greatly weakened France. He wants France as a partner against a Germany which is becoming too powerful for Italy's interests. Laval, one of the new triumvirate ruling France, and Mussolini see eye to eye. They have seen eye to eye for a long time.

DREAMS

OF AN EMPIRE

For Hitler also dreams of a Roman Empire—only his Roman Empire is the Empire of Charlemagne, the Roman Empire of the German Nation" that inherited Rome.

Already, in Spain, we can see a conflict between the two conceptions. In that unhappy country the German Gestapo is working for a German-controlled Spain, while Franco's brother-in-law, Serano Suner, though he is outwardly co-operative with the Germans, is secretly hostile to the domination exercised there by the Nazis.

The eventual interests of Germany, Italy and Russia clash in the Adriatic, in the Balkans, in the Near East, on the Black Sea. Hitler will certainly get through to the Adriatic. In a speech which he made before the outbreak of the war Hitler laid claim to the whole former empire of Charlemagne, by innuendo at least, and he certainly and openly lays claim

Good Morning—By Louie D. Newton

Talking with a mountaineer Tuesday, far back in the Sapphire country of Cashier's valley, the subject of the weather, of course, came up for discussion and prognostication. "Well, I tell you," he said, stroking his long chin whiskers, "it ain't never failed to clear off yet, and I figure that the Good Master of us all knows better than we do about the weather, just as He knows better than we do about pretty near everything else. And then, the more rain we have, the more rest we git." What if everyone had a philosophy like that?

We saw the finest crops from Atlanta to High Hampton I have ever seen in that section of the country. The cotton, of course, is having a rather hard time right now with so much rain, but the corn is wonderful, as are the potatoes, beans, peas, and all the other food crops. One native ventured the observation that he would make 100 gallons of corn to the acre and have plenty left to feed his family and stock and share some with any who were in need.

Did you know that there was a highway in Georgia that connects North and South Carolina? It is between Walhalla and Highlands. And it is one of the most picturesque roads in Georgia.

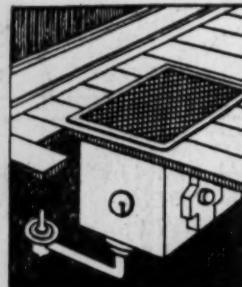

It continues to rain here at High Hampton (Tuesday). Mr. Hudson suggested this morning that we would take a walk in the rain, which we would do. We went by the lakes just to wet our appetites. If the rain keeps coming down, we shall likely get wet this afternoon in the boats instead of walking around the edge of the lakes. What a glorious country is this! I have never seen so many wild flowers, so many birds, so many haunting scenes of natural beauty.

Which is better, the mountains or the sea? In the words of Lincoln, let us agree that they mutually excel. Right now I am inclined to the mountains. When I am near the sea, I always feel that it is the winner. God hath made all things beautiful, useful and inspiring. The only limitation is on man's part. With the Psalmist, I would say, "This is the day the Lord hath made, let us rejoice and be glad therein."

I repeat, I am very glad that Beau Hudson thought about this trip to High Hampton. We came up here to fish, but we are getting many other blessings—the blessing of fellowship, relaxation, worship. Mr. Hudson has just come up stairs to announce that the boats are engaged—that we are going fishing right now! Think of fishing all the afternoon, playing checkers after supper before a big log fire, and then off to bed in the perfect quiet of a place like this!

Designed specifically for the small home which is not constructed for a basement type heating plant, the gas floor furnace efficiently and economically bridges the gap between radiant heaters and central heating systems.

Ask about the new zone heating plan with gas floor furnaces.

The Gas Floor Furnace is shown in the illustration. It is simply a compact, efficient miniature warm air furnace, completely enclosed. The top, set flush with the floor, is the familiar warm air register. Installed, nothing is visible but the register. It may be operated by thermostat or manually.

to the whole of the old Austro-Hungarian empire except for the lands south of the Brenner on the actual Italian peninsula. These he relinquished formally, and from these had been repatriating the German population.

The underground conflict of interests is left all through the southeastern countries. Hungary, for instance, is vigorously pro-German and veiledly anti-German. Rumania, desperately afraid of Hungary and Russia, looks to Germany. Yugoslavia and Bulgaria may rapidly re-enter their old Balkan leavings. Neither country is in the least afraid of the "Reds," whatever their leaders, kings or regents, may think. And Turkey is resolved to stay on good terms with the Soviet Union, whatever her other interests may be.

The Latin Union.

It is in view of this that a section of the Nazi party—the one headed by Goering—has been asking itself for a long time, "Is it worth while to destroy Great Britain? Would it not be better to come to terms with Britain, put Russia out of the picture by turning on her, and then have an overwhelming advantage against Italy and her Balkan and southwestern European satellites?"

Certainly this group in Germany is watching with some uneasiness the movements of Russia. The German-Russian agreement of 1939 allotted the Baltic and Bessarabia to Russia as spheres of influence. But the Russians have occupied considerably more than was agreed upon, and circles in Germany as well as the Italian government are worried for fear Russia may cut them off from Rumanian oil supplies and that Russia may take, one way or another—directly or through Bulgaria—the whole western Black sea coast, as well as Chanak—the entrance to the Dardanelles.

In this situation Italy wants the defeat of Britain in order to get a free hand for the Latin Union in Asia Minor and the Mediterranean, and undoubtedly the present government of France thinks that, by collaboration with Italy, France herself may share eventually some of the spoils. The Italians' hope is that the collapse of the British empire will throw rich booty into the hands of the Italian-led Latin bloc.

But Hitler, of course, has not fought this way for any such reason.

Italian Fascism is, ideologically, genuinely anti-Communist, and is a dream of a Roman empire, Fascist and Catholic, is a Vatican dream. But the radical Nazis—Goebbels, Himmler, Ribbentrop, and now apparently Hitler himself—have found that the most effective war propaganda has been that copied from the Communists. And this group are for going with Russia and for the world revolution as the best means of establishing German leadership over the whole continent of Europe and eventually of the world.

What Mussolini himself may do is a matter of speculation. If the German-Russian combination should get too strong—if he should fail to drive Germany against Russia, while he is dropping up for Pan-Latinism, and the Catholic corporate state, Christian but anti-clerical—then he might go Red himself.

At any rate, the struggle is not likely to be over in the next few weeks. It is much more profound than that, and it is worldwide in eventual scope.

Naval Academy Seeks Admiral Farragut's Bible

NEW YORK, July 11.—(P)—If you have Admiral David Farragut's Bible, the United States navy would like it to add to the Farragut mementoes in the Naval Academy chapel at Annapolis, Md.

Rear Admiral Clark Howell Woodward, commandant of the third naval district, dropped the hint today while formally accepting the gift from the admiral's widow of the last flag he flew on the historic battleship Hartford, for exhibit at the naval academy museum.

Admiral Woodward remarked that Farragut's prayer book—bearing the reputation for profanity engendered by his war cry "Damn the torpedoes" at Mobile bay—was in the Naval Academy chapel.

THE MORTAL STORM

Hans Tells Freya That His Family Like Her and Have Accepted Her

By PHYLLIS BOTOME.

SYNOPSIS.
Against the wishes of her Nazi stepbrothers, Freya Roth invites to her home Hans Breitner, a young Communist who has rescued her from a group of Nazis who were hunting down Communists and to whom, despite his philosophy, she has been immediately attracted. Hans is the son of Hans and Olaf and Emil as well as by Freya's aristocratic admirer, Fritz Maberg. Freya's desire of the return of her parents, long friends of the Roths, Freya is pursued by young players. Initially, the family that she loves, with Hans, much to Fritz's horror. Aware that it has long been the plan of the Mabergs to marry Freya, goes to his mother, the Graf von Maberg, and tell her that already vaguely apprehensive because Freya is half-Jewish, pretends to understand Freya's attitude toward her son. Now Go On With the Story!

INSTAMENT XXIX.

Frau Breitner's eyes were as blue as washed forget-me-nots, and have had the invading quality of light. Although she looked a wrinkled old woman, she was actually no older than Freya's mother.

Frau Breitner threw the grain with an expert hand, to rectify the inequalities of nature, seeing that no chicken got less or more than its due share.

When she was satisfied that all had had enough, she turned once more to Freya and said: "You are very welcome." Then her eyes wandered back to Hans, and she asked as if she already knew: "There is trouble, then?" Yet Hans had told her nothing.

He said quietly: "Well, mother—the Reichstag has been burned, and they wish to suspect all our people, so perhaps it would be wise to stay up here a little—or perhaps even to go over the frontier into Tiro. When lightning strikes, the mouse is sometimes burned with the farm."

Frau Breitner nodded her head, and turned back into the barn. She did not seem to think it necessary to express an opinion on what had happened, nor apparently did Hans expect her to give it. A flock of goats came bounding and scuttling down the mountain side, followed by a very small boy in a very big blue overall. This was Anna's Franz. He had a whistle that he had made himself from a model given him by Hans, and this being the absorbing subject of his life at the moment, he held it out gravely for them to count the stops; then putting it to his lips, he drew from it two or three notes that were almost a tune.

Anna came suddenly out of a farther door in the barn. She was a very plain young woman with a very little dust-colored hair on her head, and the cruel break of the furrowed lip in her kind face; but even about her ugliness there was an assured contentment.

Anna knew that she was a useful person with a son; and that no one thought the worse of her for her physical disabilities. She held out her hand in unembarrassed welcome to Freya, and said proudly: "This is my son!" Having given that explanation of her existence, Anna withdrew into the Scheune. Far away, climbing up the steep mountainside from the slip of green valley, Karl could be seen, casually followed at long intervals by 20 fawn and cream-colored cows.

The air filled and emptied itself from the lazy clamour of their bells.

As soon as Karl drew nearer, Freya saw how like Hans he was, only taller and graver; he had been the head of the house since he was 16 years old, and the weight of it was written on his young face.

His eyes met Freya's for a brief shyness, before he turned away his head, but Freya knew that he had already come to a permanent conclusion about her. None of the family attempted to talk to Freya. After a brief and friendly greeting, each went on with whatever job they had in mind.

Karl went into the barn and the cows pushed their way in after him, with slow tranquillity. Franz disposed of his goats. Michel put the lamb in a basket by the kitchen fire; and Hans took Freya to her room. It was above the cows, and had a tiny wooden balcony, facing the crest of the Wetterstein.

"Oh, Hans," Freya said, tugging at his coat with both hands, "do you think it's all right? Will they ever like me?" I could learn to milk cows, couldn't I?"

Hans laughed cheerfully. "Will they ever like you?" he repeated teasingly, "why, that they already do!" It is not necessary for you to milk cows in order to make my people fond of you. It is enough for them that I like you! You see—living here all alone by ourselves, most of the year never seeing a soul beyond our own family—get to know and trust each other; as people down below seldom can. We know this quality of each one's work, and we have to depend on it."

"It is not safe up here," Freya pleaded, "so far away! Couldn't you stay here always? Would anyone ever come up here to arrest you? And couldn't he hide if they did? We can see for such miles and miles all around us; and no one would dare to climb up the Wetterstein in the dark!"

Hans stood beside her on the tiny balcony, looking across a gulf of fiery colour, to the remote white peaks of the Wetterstein.

"It might be safe for a time," he admitted, "but if they suspected I had taken shelter here—the farm might suffer. That is why Karl has never joined the party, though he is with us heart and soul. He obeys and will support the Nazis, for my mother's sake, and Michel and Anna's, though it makes him sad. I alone am suspect; but if they harbour me, then no one will believe they are good National Socialists. If I go into another land, then they will be safe from me. All will swear that I was never here; and Seppel will see—that when I am safe—the Nazis know I have escaped. And escaped from Munich—not from here. These lies are theirs—not ours, since they force lies out of us! Our country no longer belongs to her children—we are as homeless as the Jews."

"Up here we feel as if the earth belonged to us, because we work on it, and do for it what it requires. Our animals love and obey us, since we also love them, and serve their needs. We do not hurt their pride; or torture them; or take their lives to prove our power over them. If any have to be killed, it is mercifully done—and for the sake of food to live by—but man is not the food of man, so that it is without reason to kill each other! Why should we kill, or be killed by our brothers?" He stopped and sighed heavily, as if the weight of the murder of mankind was on his innocent heart.

The light had faded from the golden slopes. The sky above the peaks was colorless and pure, through its unbroken clarity a small star shook its pale primrose light.

"How young it looks—like that newborn lamb!" Freya whispered, her head against his breast.

A bell rang out to call them down to supper. Hans and Freya took their bowls of milk-potato soup out on to the balcony to eat while the light lasted, and Franz sat with them. After supper they went back into the kitchen, and since it was a great occasion, they each ate a slice of Brosel cake and drank a glass of wine; then Franz went to bed, taking his candle and going up proudly alone, except that after a minute or two, Michel followed him, to be sure that he was safe in bed, and blow out his candle.

Hans took his pipe out of his mouth at last. "I must go," he said slowly, "my name is on the lists—they may not have it yet in Berlin, but who knows when they will find the Munich lists! Our arrests have not yet begun, but Uncle Gustav has already been told not to keep me on. That is the beginning of danger. The Reichstag has been burned, Karl—by them, of course—I suppose as a sort of signal of their power to the world. I cannot marry Freya yet either—that too must wait. But I look on her as my wife. If I stay up here, all are in danger with me."

For a long time nobody answered. Freya thought that they were listening still to what Hans had said—turning it over and over in their hearts. Then Karl took out his pipe and looked at his brother. "To too, think it best," he said sombrely, "bad as it is! We have the farm to think of. We could keep you, Hans—but in the end they might find out and visit it on us all. The life of a hidden man too—is that a life indeed? You could have no home in Germany. It is best then to go elsewhere to make one—Austria, if possible—for Tiro is near, and the life there like our own, and we could sometimes see each other! So they have burned the Reichstag in Berlin: it is out of Prussia that all evil has come to us Germans! First Bismarck—then the Kaiser—now this man Hitler—Austrian, though he is—has the Prussian mind—and we know that the Junker are behind him. They, and the great industrialists, would sell their live country to a shark for his meal, in order to keep more gold than anyone needs, in their own pockets! Blood and iron is their harvest! What do men find beautiful or useful in these words? Blood is beautiful if it runs in a healthy man's veins—but if it is spilled, who profits? Iron if it is used for ploughing, can make our food, but for tanks and cannon—what use—what joy lies there? Death comes in time to all, but must we make so that we may die in the hot life of our youth?

"It is you men who make war!" Anna cried bitterly. "We who have children, would never make it! Why should a woman be broken up in pain, to give her child life, only to see him carried away from her, to make food for guns? What is Hitler? What is my country, compared to Franz? Will they live at my knee, and comfort me when I am old? They are not the child I fed from my breast and gave my blood to bring into the world! Why should Franz be taken away from me to die for Hitler? Why should Hans here be taken? Hitler and these idiots who obey him till I die!"

"That will be of no use, Anna," Frau Breitner said quietly, and it occurred to Freya that she had not heard Hans' mother speak since she welcomed her outside the barn. "Curses were children of hate; they belong to the wrong family! Prayers are better than curses!"

Again silence fell upon them; only the flames in the big fireplace rose, and died down again; burned red and sank slowly into gray ash. Freya's eyes moved towards the crucifix. The Christ hung there in defeat, after two thousand years; but after two thousand years, the act of love that stretches Him on His wooden cross, was still alive.

When Freya announced that she would go with Hans as far as the frontier, she found herself gazed at by five pairs of hostile peasant eyes, holding her in like a wall.

Seppel had come over from the Gaudemeus Hütte; and they all sat together on the wooden balcony, drinking coffee and making their last plans.

"Such a thing is impossible," Frau Breitner said to Freya, with decisive gravity; "you have already done enough. A young Fraulein is not accustomed to hardship. This is a night upon which anything might happen; and to you, Fraulein, enough has already happened. Rest here with us—we will look well after you."

Your Own Horoscope for Today
By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist.

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21 and April 20 (ARIES)—Until 10:45 a. m. favors dealings with older and conservative people. Between 10:45 a. m. and 6:20 p. m. favors affairs of a progressive nature, and for improving old masters. After 6:20 p. m. favors attention to routine.

April 20 and May 20 (TAURUS)—The combined influences operating throughout the entire day make this a negative period. Favorable for personal contacts with art, music, literature. In other matters you are likely to meet stern opposition and intense coldness.

May 21 and June 20 (GEMINI)—An excellent time to seek favors, consultations, artistic work, industrial matters, dealing with older people especially in financial transactions, legal affairs and travel.

June 21 and July 20 (CANCER)—Throughout the day and evening, be careful in the attitude you take toward others. A tendency will be to make sudden decisions that are contrary to your usual procedure. You may be compelled to make decisions that later will bring regrets. The period does not favor taking risks, especially if these involve strangers.

July 23 and August 22 (LEO)—The day favors matters that require confidence, courage and quick action. The period favors lessening of natural conservatism, conferences and for travel if too much speed is avoided.

August 23 and September 22 (VIRGO)—The day favors matters of a conservative and commercial nature, but matters relating to lands, mines and produce. Use caution around liquids and water.

September 23 and October 22 (LIBRA)—The morning hours until 12:29 noon favor dealings in art, land, literary pursuits and health with the opposite sex. The afternoon and evening hours do not especially favor making sudden or of late decisions, but do afford additional financial responsibilities.

October 23 and November 21 (SCORPIO)—Favorable for personal journeys, legal matters, educational matters, mechanical ideas and general business. Between 11:24 p. m. and 6:00 p. m. avoid mental confusion and half-finished matters.

November 22 and December 21 (SAGITTARIUS)—The day and evening does not favor the beginning of new or important undertakings, but previous to 8:26 p. m. favors communications, correspondence, conferences and artistic pursuits.

December 22 and January 19 (CAPRICORN)—Domestic affairs, business for the adornment of women should prove most favorable during the entire day. The day does not especially favor contacting people, but men who are thought of as stubborn.

January 20 and February 18 (AQUARIUS)—Before 10:47 a. m. favors making your status in business and more especially in business, not by taking on added responsibilities, seeking favors or dealing with legal matters. The day favors work dealing with conservative people, but does not favor making sudden changes.

February 19 and March 20 (PIRUS)—The day does not favor new or important undertakings, but does favor correspondence, communications, conferences and artistic pursuits.

Finds Dachshund Pups Impartial In Their Warfare.

Vicinity of Temple (Ga.) boasts of a mule which steadfastly refuses to pull a plow after noon on Saturdays. Smart mule!

The news item didn't say whether or not there is a sawmill whose noon whistle can be heard on the adjacent farms. If there is not I am wondering just how Farmer Watson's mule knows when it's knocking off time.

All my life I have read of dogs with superintelligence, the wonders of the neighborhood. I've even seen a few. But of all the dogs I have owned none had any more brains than would fill a thimble. I never could teach them tricks. Possibly because I didn't have the patience. Possibly because, as an old Negro once remarked: "To teach a dog something you've got to have more sense than the dog."

"But refusal to learn tricks hasn't kept my succession of dogs from being most interesting and lovable."

There are three at home now—dachshund pups under a year old. They stay in a fairly large yard of their own, where they rarely indulge in play. But once they are turned out into the garden they take on new life.

It's as good as a circus to watch their warfare. Always two gang up against the third. One gets an ear hold, another chooses a hind leg to pull on, and the middle dog is the victim. But, oddly, they play no favorites. The victim of one moment may be the middle—and under—dog the next.

And they almost never lose their tempers. Only when a tender ear is pinched too severely is there a yelp and a growl and a loud announcement of revenge. When one pup declares he's on the warpath the others leave the scene with speed—and don't come back until all is forgotten.

March of Progress.

Out Peachtree street, in a section where once the swank set of Atlanta lived and entertained in mansions set deep in wooded lawns, another fine old home is being demolished—to make room for an apartment house, perhaps.

None of the workmen I questioned knew the original owner. Probably it had spent years in the boarding house stage.

Not many of the original old families remain in the fine homes which still stand.

Much of Peachtree has been given over to business. But there still are a few fine stretches still beautiful. I'm thinking of those blocks from about Thirteenth street north to Peachtree Station. And especially of those just north of Fifteenth street and the fountain. True, there are tall apartments along there, but they have not spoiled the beauty of Peachtree.

Long Life Lamp.

Really company erected a building in Savannah 15 years ago. Contractors failed to put in a switch to cut off the light over the entrance. But it hasn't mattered. That light has burned steadily throughout those 15 years, according to the Savannah News. Power company says it is a "carbon" lamp.

I believe everything I see in the papers, except some of my own stuff, but as I remember the old carbon filament lamps, they were especially sensitive to vibration and lasted but a short time as compared to the modern bulbs, which use a different type of filament.

But perhaps there is no vibration in Savannah.

It rained out at our house Monday night. I'd have sworn it rained two feet in two hours. I was bothered about the dogs in their house, far up the back yard, but I had no rubber boots and am a poor swimmer, so I put faith in their shelter and hoped for the best.

The dogs kept dry—but a large goldfish was drowned in our pool. No, you don't believe that. But he was dead and floating around next morning. And not a scar on him. Maybe he was allergic to rainwater.

Maybe the cops haven't been keeping abreast of the times. Friend of mine was involved in a slight automobile accident. Busted fenders and all that. Local policemen questioned him on everything except his grandfather's name and his own church affiliation. But never did ask whether he had a driver's license.

After a few years' rest from tree-sitters, black widow spiders and hen's eggs with mysterious symbols on them, the folk who hold 13 spades in bridge games are turning up again.

It's possible, because it's a big country with a lot of bridge players. But always I have wondered why one never holds 13 hearts or diamonds or clubs. One of life's little mysteries.

Germans Form Theater

Calling itself "The Free German Stage," a theater company has been formed in Buenos Aires, Argentina, to present plays banned in the Reich. The players are all professionals from Germany, Austria, Hungary and Czechoslovakia, and Argentina is also represented. The company began its season with "Jean" by Ladislaus Bus-Kekete. The three leading spirits are Paul Walter Jacob, Mme. Liselott Reger Jacob and Hermann Gelzer. Jacob, who was a director in Europe, stated that half the Germans in Argentina were opposed to the Nazi point of view and would be glad to associate themselves with a different culture.

British Princesses Share War Peril

BRITAIN'S PRINCESSES

are to be homebodies, it seems. The London Daily Mail says the King and Queen are firm in rejecting suggestions that Princess Elizabeth (left) and Princess Margaret be sent out of the country. They'll share the perils of other youngsters who can't flee beleaguered England.

HER OWN FUNERAL PYRE

MEET THE GOVERNOR

He's also a duke and he used to be a king, but more recently he's a governor. He is, in short, Edward, Duke of Windsor (left), recently appointed governor of the Bahamas. He's being interviewed at Lisbon by a reporter. Note the photo of Hitler in the newsman's hand.

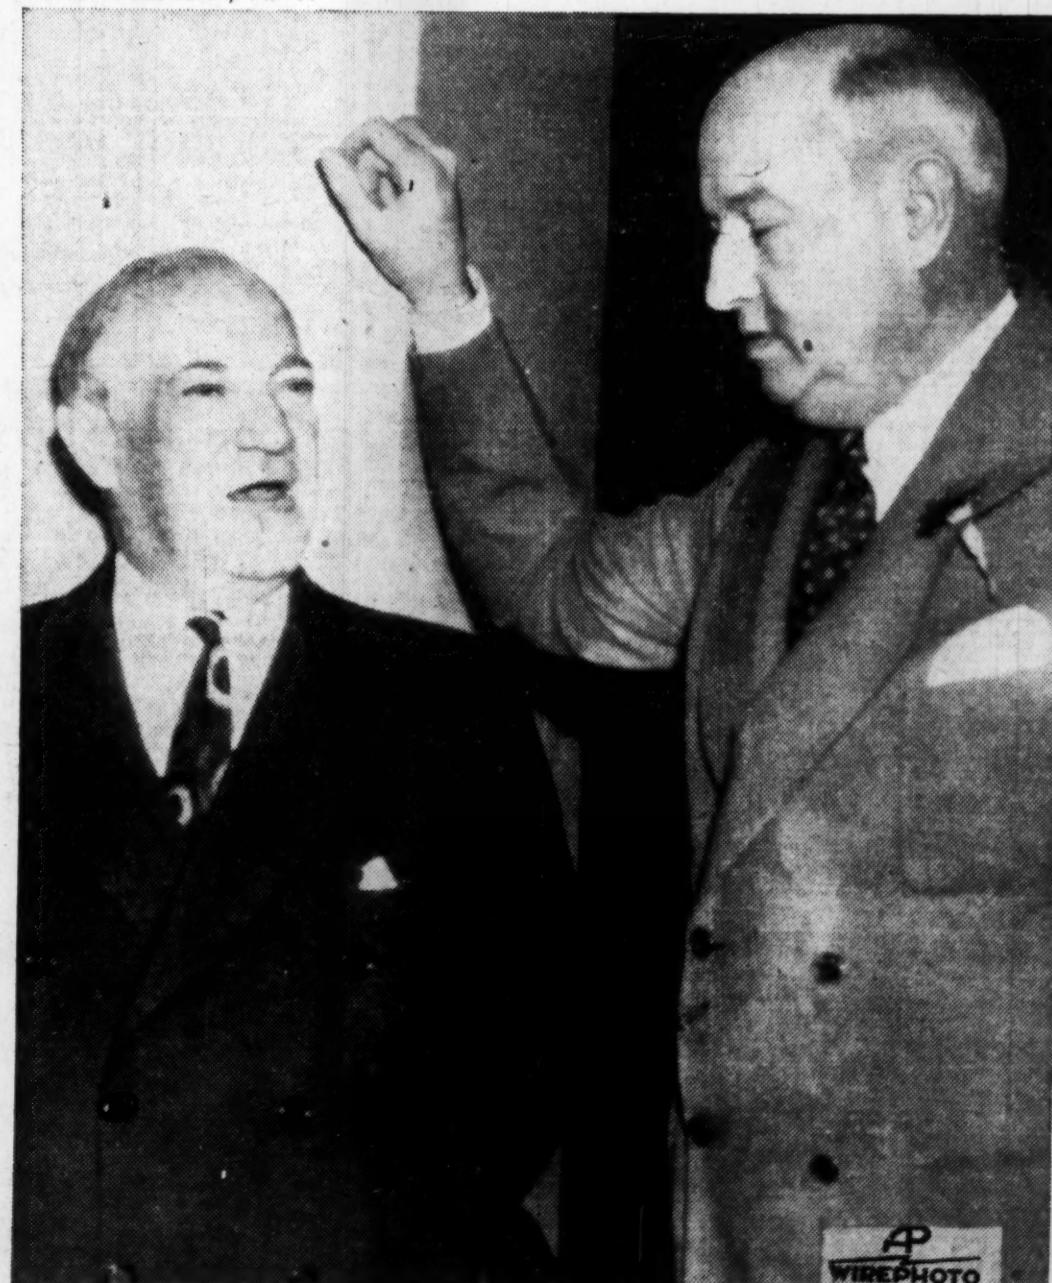

SEEK SAFETY

These two kiddies, however, wish to flee to the haven of America. A London physician examines them in a special office for refugees wanting to escape to the United States.

"THAT'S NOT SO"

That was the retort of Senator Robert Wagner when questioned on reports he had brought a draft of a foreign affairs plank for the Democrats when he arrived in Chicago, where Democrats will convene Monday. Here Senator Wagner has a talk with Postmaster General Jim Farley.

Says Nazis To Fight British by Blockade, Not by Invasion.

In the darkest hours for Britain during the World War, the expression "cheerio" became a national slogan of unshaken morale, just as the "thumbs-up" gesture of British Tommies amid today's even darker portents is an ironic defiance of Nazi and Fascist salutes.

British war leadership of this day, however, is at obvious pains to dispel any thought in British minds that delay in the full development of the German attack on England lessens the certainty that it will come. Cabinet spokesmen, from Prime Minister Churchill down, insistently reiterate, in effect, that paradoxical Americanism, "cheer up, the worst is yet to come."

The warning by the undersecretary of war, Sir Edward Grigg, that an attack might come in "several places at dawn" falls into that class. Presumably he meant any dawn, not a particular dawn.

His remark was obviously intended to keep public attention centered on the fear of invasion that haunts British pillows for the first time in many generations. That fear has a definite asset value for the beleaguered nation because it keeps Britons on the constant alert.

Dover Strait.

Yet there are many circumstances still suggesting that a German attempt to invade England would be the ultimate victory move of Nazi strategy, not the first stroke. It also seems highly probable that when and if invasion is tried, Dover strait, the narrowest stretch of the English channel, must be the main point of assault. There alone are there obvious possibilities of a Nazi bridgehead being established which could permit the swift ferrying to England of the mass forces and heavy mechanized equipment that successful invasion would require.

If that is true, it does not appear possible that the water transport necessary for such a movement could be assembled anywhere along the German-held coasts of France, Belgium, Holland or Norway without detection by British air scouts or submarines. Perilous as England's situation is, it does not follow that the Germans can achieve invasion by surprise.

Actually, the intensifying German air and submarine campaign against British shipping and the danger of a Nazi effort to seize Ireland and thus encircle England by a starvation blockade are probably of much more immediate concern to British leadership than invasion prospects. The new triple-purpose British mine barrage from the Orkneys to the coast of Greenland is evidence of that.

Reduces Patrol.

It represents an effort to prevent German forces from Norway from reaching the Emerald Isle. At the same time it is designed to reduce the number of British naval and air units required for effective patrol in so wide a stretch of sea.

The obvious fact about the recent air action in the straits of Dover is that British convoys still are using those narrow waters, although Germany holds the French coasts less than a score of miles away. The fighting was witnessed from the famous chalk cliffs of Dover, apparently.

It is to be assumed that the convoy attacked by the Germans was passing along the English coast behind the virtually complete British mine barrage that extends all the way from the Pentland Firth to Land's End. Those mine fields, unquestionably heavily increased since the fall of France, form a supplemental protection against invasion.

Seems Improbable.

Germany would have to engage in slow and extensive mine sweeping operations to clear a path to any points on the east coast of England selected for landing operations. That such operations could be carried out without detection by British air or navy scouts seems improbable. Those mine fields add immeasurably to British hopes of due warning if and when Hitler orders invasion.

The Dover strait air battle looks more like an indication of intensifying Nazi siege warfare against England than a possible prelude to invasion. It is linked with German claims that 600,000 tons of British merchant ships were sent down within the last six weeks by Nazi submarines alone.

If those claims are well founded England still has more to fear from starvation than from immediate invasion probabilities, for all the official warnings that may be uttered in London to keep the nation on a fighting edge.

MARTINIQUE TRUCE APPEARS IMMINENT

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(P)—A settlement removing the threat of British and French naval hostilities near the Caribbean island of Martinique appeared in prospect tonight through the efforts of the United States.

Both Britain and France were said to be anxious to clear up what was described as an "explosive" situation growing out of a virtual British blockade of the French island to prevent ships and planes from escaping and possibly falling into German hands.

The prospective arrangement was expected to involve a French agreement to keep any warships or planes at Martinique or to allow them to be interned at some neutral port. Among the warships there is the French aircraft carrier Bearn, reported to have aboard some 200 American-made planes.

Deadline Today For Letters on Best Vacation

Rainy Spell Should Bring Inspiration for What Is 'Heavenly' Idea.

After our rainy siege in Atlanta these past few days, any place where it was dry would probably constitute a "heavenly" place for your "heavenly" vacation. And that sun is nice to see. It must have been fun, though, staying in during those several nights of rather stormy weather just to sit down and wonder "What I consider a 'heavenly' vacation." And that happy thought made you feel much better know.

One bad night we just got thinking what we'd consider a heavenly vacation. And goodness, any random thought soon became the best vacation possible. So we know all you contestants must be having an awfully hard time trying to decide what would be the most "heavenly" vacation for you.

Today Is Last Day.

And we're looking forward to reading those letters you've planned and will be writing today. Remember to get them in to The Atlanta Constitution Contest Editor before 6 o'clock tonight. Winners will be announced Sunday.

This is the last day of the contest, and the accompanying coupon is the last to be published. But it's worth 25 votes and you could get lots more and then sit down and dash off your letter. Who knows how many votes will win? Often "dark horses" come up first, so even though you began only yesterday or today, there's still a good chance.

The "What I Consider a 'Heavenly' Vacation" contest is being held in conjunction with the showing of "All This, and Heaven Too," starring Bette Davis and Charles Boyer at the Fox starting today.

Simple Rules.

The rules of the contest are simple, and anyone except employees of The Constitution and the Fox theater and their relatives is eligible. Just clip the coupon printed each day, which is worth 25 votes, and get as many as possible and send in all your coupons with a letter of not more than 100 words on the subject, "What I Consider a Heavenly Vacation."

Watch Sunday's Constitution for names of the winners. And . . .

ANDY TRIUMPHS AGAIN

Mickey Rooney meets the No. 1 deb in "Andy Hardy Meets His Debutante," and makes her beg forgiveness for having him thrown from her house. Diana Lewis is the girl. The film has been held for another week at Loew's Grand, beginning today.

Goddard and Hope Held at Rhodes

"The Ghost Breakers" has been held over at the Rhodes theater, with Bob Hope and Paulette Goddard.

Boy Hope is at his best. Even the skeletons rattled in the closets from laughter when they weren't in use scaring people half to death," one critic wrote. And, as aside to the girls—and the boys—Paulette is something to see.

Hope and Miss Goddard don't keep the picture entirely to themselves. They have plenty of expert help. Richard Carlson, who has the part of a playboy who doesn't play so well when he's cornered, gives an excellent account of himself. "Paul Lukas, whom we haven't seen often enough lately, hides his identity behind a flowing beard that makes a menace out of a former handsome leading man. Willis Best, who has been nicknamed "Syracuse," not because it's near "Rochester" or anything like that, is an excellent foil for Hope, whose Negro man-servant he plays. Anthony Quinn, well—you'll have to see for yourself."

Ellington, Band Arrive Wednesday

Duke Ellington, among the most famous of the Negro orchestra leaders year in and year out, will bring his orchestra to Atlanta Wednesday night to play for a dance at the municipal auditorium. Music will begin at 9 o'clock.

Following the custom, a large section of the auditorium will be reserved for white patrons who wish to hear the music as played by this famed musician.

"ALL THIS, AND HEAVEN, TOO!"

Vacation Contest.

This coupon, when clipped and mailed to the Vacation Contest Editor, at The Atlanta Constitution, will be counted as 25 votes for:

Macon County Marks Three Historic Sites

Dedication Exercises To Be Held Next Wednesday.

Special to THE CONSTITUTION.
OGLETHORPE, Ga., July 11.—Representatives of patriotic bodies from throughout the state will come to Macon county next Wednesday to attend the unveiling of commemorative markers honoring three figures in the early history of this section.

Dedication exercises will be held at Marshallville at 11 o'clock in the morning, in Montezuma at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and at Oglethorpe a half hour later. Members of the Montezuma Kiwanis Club will entertain the especially invited visitors at a barbecue luncheon on the Montezuma Country Club.

Marker to Rumph.

At Marshallville, dedication of the first marker will commemorate the service rendered to agriculture by Samuel Henry Rumph, who propagated the Elberta peach, who started the shipment of peaches in a mortised crate, which he invented, and who pioneered in refrigerated shipping.

Ann Rumph, of Atlanta, a granddaughter, will unveil the marker. Mrs. D. B. Frederick will introduce Benning Grice, of Macon, grandson of Rumph, who will deliver the address. A eulogy will be delivered by Dr. John D. Wade, and the marker will be accepted by Mayor J. T. Lyle.

The Montezuma marker will mark the reserve set aside for Buckee Barnard, half-breed Indian son of Timothy Barnard, and the site of the home of Timpochee Barnard, Indian chief and first known resident of this section. This marker will be sponsored by the Montezuma Garden Club, and Miss Orelia Cheves, its president, will preside.

Mrs. Oscar McKenzie will introduce Benjamin Neal, who will deliver the dedicatory address. The marker will be unveiled by Harper Gaston, of Columbus, and Christine McKenzie, daughter of Mayor John Thomas McKenzie, who will officially accept it.

Second Barnard Marker.

The marker here will mark the home site of Timothy Barnard, who was principal assistant to Benjamin Hawkins and lived here from colonial days until 1820. It also will mark Barnard's Trail, which extended from Coweta to St. Marks and St. Augustine on the Atlantic coast, and to Pensacola on the gulf. The trail was the main thoroughfare for mail and travel in that period.

The marker here will be sponsored by the James Edward Oglethorpe Chapter, Daughters of the American Colonists, of Atlanta, with Mrs. John W. Rice, regent, presiding. Mrs. J. E. Hays, state historian and director of the Georgia department of archives and history, who will deliver the dedicatory address, will be introduced by Mrs. Lucius McConnell, state regent. Mrs. John M. Slaton will lead the salute to the flag.

Two members of the Georgia Girls' Military band will sound "Taps" at each of the programs.

The markers were produced at Georgia Tech under the direction of Charles King, historian of the state parks department, and installed by the State Highway Department.

Among other visitors expected to attend the ceremonies are Mrs. Thomas Mays, state regent, D. A. R., and honorary state regent, D. A. C.; Mrs. A. McD. Wilson Jr., Mrs. W. W. McCall, Mrs. A. C. McCall, Mrs. Lorraine McCord, state first vice president, U. D. C.; Mrs. Bunn Wylie, honorary state regent, D. A. C.; Mrs. Williams Jones, state recording secretary, D. A. Alabama To Bar Foreign Uniforms
MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 11. (P)—Three new laws which grew out of turbulent international conditions went on Alabama's statute books today upon receiving the signature of Governor Frank M. Dixon.

The new laws:
1. Make it unlawful to wear the uniform or give the salute of a foreign government or organization in Alabama.

2. Protect the merit system status of state employees who may be called into active military service.

3. Authorize the Governor to use surplus Military Department funds for any new national guard units that may be allocated the state.

1940 Census May Give State New Legislator

Georgia Expected To Show Population Gain of 400,000.

WASHINGTON, July 11.—(P)—On the basis of the 1940 census count in the larger counties, Georgia apparently will show a population gain of about 400,000, bringing the total to about 3,300,000—which may give the state another congressman.

Census bureau officials said the chances were that a 400,000 increase would be sufficient to give a state another seat in the house. Georgia lost two after the 1930 count.

The house membership will remain at 435—unless Congress changes its mind—and that number simply will be reapportioned on the basis of the new census.

As for the chances of Georgia's getting another congressman, it all depends on whether the state's increase is greater on a percentage basis than the national increase.

CAN YOU NAME HALF?

Of the twenty-one Pan-American Republics of the Western Hemisphere, how many can you name? A third, half, two-thirds, all of them?

For how many could you give even the approximate date of original discovery, settlement and colonization? Could you, for any one of them, state the year in which it threw off European control and became independent? Could you name any of the national heroes of these countries? Can you name the "George Washington" of South America?

Most of us have forgotten the little we ever learned in school about this whole continent of sister American Republics.

Today, however, faced with the threat of foreign impenetration or domination, economic and military—dread threat of violation of our prized Monroe Doctrine—all the nations of this Western Hemisphere have pressing problems in common. They must hang together or they may all hang separately.

If you would like to have for constant reference, a comprehensive picture of the discovery, colonization, changes of government, achievement of independence and territorial readjustments of each and every one of the Pan-American Republics, send the coupon below for the Pan-American Histo-Graph in over 30 shades of color. In the days ahead, it behoves every American to know as much as possible about the Republics of this Hemisphere. This unique publication, prepared as the result of many months of detailed and painstaking research, gives you the main historical facts about all these governments. Use the coupon below to order your copy.

Mrs. Land Resigns To Aid Talmadge

Mrs. Max E. Land said yesterday she had resigned as president of the women's division of the Democratic party of Georgia.

Mrs. Land explained she could not take active part in political campaigns and remain an officer of the organizations. She said she planned to lend her support to Eugene Talmadge for Governor.
